PENDING TRIAL

Circuit Judge Ryan Denies Pleas of Attorney Who Is Under Indictment for the Kidnaping of Alexander Berg for Ransom.

HOLDS EVIDENCE
'CLEAR AND STRONG'

Verne Lacy, Defendant's Lawyer, Says He Has Not Decided Whether to Take an Appeal to the Supreme Court.

Paul A. Richards, attorney and declared agent for the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, today has his fight in Circuit Judge Ryan's court on a charge of kidnaping for ransom, a capital offense.

Richards was in court, under guard, to hear the decision of the court, which means that he must remain a prisoner in city jail unless he can obtain admission to bail from the Supreme Court.

Judge Ryan gave a long oral decision in which he painstakingly reviewed the evidence placed before him Friday and Saturday—evidence by the State of its case against Richards, on the one hand, and the defense arguments in favor of bond, on the other.

"Evidence Clear and Strong," "is the court's opinion," Judge Ryan concluded. "The evidence against this defendant is clear and strong. Nothing has been brought forth in the evidence to indicate any lessening of degree of guilt as to the crime charged—kidnaping for ransom."

"The charge is one of great gravity. The part of the defendant, as indicated by the evidence, was an absolutely essential one in carrying out the peculiar character of the crime."

"It is not for this court to pretend that a jury will receive the evidence, nor to consider whether or not that jury would inflict the extreme penalty (death) by hanging. The question in this case is simply whether, as to this defendant, the proof of guilt is evident to the presumption great."

Not Certain About Appeal. He then announced that he would be denied and told Richards' counsel, Verne Lacy, that he would arrange for an early setting of the case should Lacy decide to take the matter before a higher court. Normally, this would be done by applying for a writ of habeas corpus, and appealing from the decision to the Supreme Court.

Lacy told reporters, however, that he had not determined what steps he would take, and made no request for an early setting. Richards heard the decision without show of emotion, lounging in a chair in a characteristic attitude. The courtroom was crowded, largely by lawyers and Municipal Court employees who had heard the decision was to be given at the opening of the afternoon session.

Court's Review of Evidence. Reviewing the evidence, Judge Ryan went carefully over the testimony of Berg, a wealthy fur dealer, Morris G. Levinson, his lawyer, and John T. Rogers, Post-Dispatch reporter, who were the only witnesses for the State.

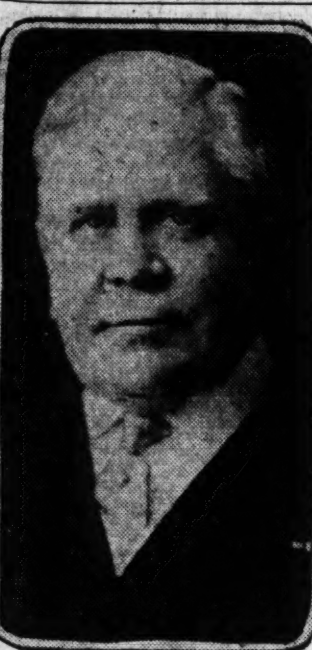

He dealt with particular emphasis on the testimony of Levinson and Rogers as to Richards' activities looking toward the collection of $50,000 ransom for Berg's return, following his abduction on Nov. 8. It was upon this testimony that he based his conclusion that Richards was the principal in the kidnaping and not a figure of lesser guilt, as they had contended.

The hearing on the motion to admit Richards to bail began Friday when he surrendered a $100,000 bond on which he had been released Nov. 13. In the interim he had been indicted. His application for bail was resisted by Circuit Attorney Miller. At the close of the hearing Judge Ryan announced he would give the matter careful study over the weekend and Richards was lodged in jail where five other men under indictment in the case also are held.

POOLING PLAN FOR RAILROAD REVENUE

However, It Expects Companies to Use Funds From Increased Rates to Aid Weak Lines.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today withdrew its plan for pooling revenue from increases in railroad freight rates which it suggested in its decision of the 15 per cent rate increase case.

At the same time, it permitted certain increases to become effective and stated that "we neither approve nor disapprove either the pooling plan nor the agency's carriers say they expect and intend to use in making that plan effective."

"However," the commission continued, "we rely on them to apply the funds to be derived from the authorized increases in rates in aid of financially weak railroads in accordance with our original report."

Under the plan of the commission the roads would set up the agency for aiding the roads whose bonds were endangered.

The commission changed its previous surcharge of $3 a car to 6 cents a ton on freight included under that classification and the $6 a car classification to 12 cents a ton.

Other rates authorized to be increased remained the same as outlined in the 15 per cent decision.

COCHRAN WOULD GIVE U. S. JURISDICTION IN KIDNAPINGS
St. Louis Congressman Offers Bill To Allow Government to Aid When Mails Are Used.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A bill introduced in the House today by Congressman Cochran of St. Louis would give the Federal Government jurisdiction whenever the mails are used in connection with kidnaping cases. Under a decision of the Supreme Court in a Chicago case several years ago this jurisdiction is now lacking, with the result that post office inspectors have been unable to join local authorities in hunting down kidnapers.

The mails and private mail boxes have been used recently by kidnapers in both St. Louis and Kansas City, Mo. Cochran said today that both the Postoffice Department and the Department of Justice desired the proposed legislation. The bill would subject persons using the mails for purpose of extortion, blackmail or intimidation of jurors or witnesses to a prison term ranging from two to 20 years.

Temperature Low Over Entire State and North Dakota.

By the Associated Press.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 7.—Strong wind helped drive temperatures to as low as 22 degrees below zero in Minnesota early today, for the coldest day this season. The minimum was at Thief River Falls, in the northwestern section. Sub-zero weather was general elsewhere in the state.

East Central North Dakota had as low as 14 degrees below zero, at the other extreme was Williston, in the northwestern section, with four above.

CLARENCE HOWARD DIES; FUNERAL TO BE HERE THURSDAY

St. Louis Steel Man, Donor to Education, Philanthropy and Boy Scouts, Succumbs in Boston at 68

ARRANGEMENTS WAIT ON ARRIVAL OF BODY

Prominent Christian Scientist, Large Contributor to The Principia, Victim of Heart Disease.

The funeral of Clarence H. Howard, steel manufacturer, large donor to education, philanthropy and Boy Scout work, will be held probably Thursday, following the arrival of his body from Boston, where he died yesterday at the age of 68, after several months' illness.

The place of the funeral will be the residence at 8900 Lackland road, Overland, but no final announcement of the time has been made.

Mr. Howard died in the Christian Science Benevolent Association Sanatorium in Boston. An attending physician certified heart failure as the cause of death. His wife, Mrs. Minnie Morey Howard, was with him, and their son, Clarence H. Howard Jr., and his wife, are on their way to Boston. They will, with the elder Mrs. Howard, accompany the body home.

Mr. Howard gave time, money and personal service to the maintenance and development of The Principia, which is now building its new collegiate institution on Plaza Bluffs, near Elsie, Ill. A gift of $1,000,000 to the endowment fund of the institution, announced as anonymous, was generally regarded as coming from Mr. Howard.

The announced gift of Mr. and Mrs. Howard, for the purchase and improvement of the new college site, was $200,000. Mr. Howard financed the institution in an earlier plan for removal to a new location in St. Louis County, this plan being abandoned when the Illinois location was chosen.

Other recent benefactions of Mr. Howard were: Community Fund, aside from gifts to member agencies, $20,000 in 1931, $50,000 in 1930, $50,000 in 1929; to the Boy Scouts, $50,000 a year for past eight years to finance local activities; $25,000 in 1930 to pay off loans due; $10,000 for Cub Scouts in 1930 and $10,000 in 1931; besides $100,000 several years ago to the national boy scout movement, and frequent smaller contributions to the Ironclad Camp and other local objects.

Mr. Howard's gifts to the Community Fund in 10 years, including the amounts mentioned, reached a total of $99,400.

Golden Rule Advocate Laid Success to Mother's Five Precepts.
M. HOWARD, who frequently proclaimed his belief in the Golden Rule, believed also in another bit of Scripture, and practiced it diligently. "Let your light so shine before men" was a command which he obeyed whenever he was called on, and he was frequently in his years of business activity, for a public address.

Many an after-dinner audience, to which Mr. Howard was asked to "say a few words," became familiar with three anecdotes of his early career, told for the benefit of the listeners and those to whom they might repeat the recital. His career a successful one, he believed it his duty to tell others of the things which had helped him to success.

The first, and the most tellingly told, of Mr. Howard's anecdotes, was his account of his mother's words to him, on his departure from his home in Nebraska, when, at the age of 14, to go to work in the Union Pacific shops at North Platte, Neb. Her advice, as he frequently related it, was given in five precepts, which he would tell off on the fingers of one hand.

Mother's Five Precepts.
"First, seek good company, those whom you can trust, and association with whom will make you better. Second, never drink or where drinking is done. Third, never gamble or go where gambling is done. Fourth, smoking is not so bad as drinking or gambling, but it is expensive; let it alone and spend your money for an education; fifth, if asked to go anywhere, ask yourself 'if you would like to take your mother along; if not, don't go.'"

The second of the Howard stories came not long after the maternal advice, in point of time. While working at North Platte, and guarding his morals in the manner prescribed by his mother, he asked an older employee in the shops to explain to him the workings of the essential parts of a locomotive.

"Kid," the man replied. "It cost $100,000." "What?" "That's what it cost."

DUE TO STORMS AT SEA

60-Mile Wind Brings Liner to Virtual Standstill Several Times.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Whipped by terrific winter storms, the Berengaria, flagship of the Cunard Line, has completed half of its trans-Atlantic voyage to New York far behind schedule and with the prospect of being at least a day late in arrival.

The liner has been beset by sudden gales, at times reaching 50 miles an hour, wireless advices disclosed.

The ship has been running in the teeth of the series of storms intermittently for four days, the wind piling mountainous waves over the decks and bringing the ship almost to a standstill to prevent damage to the superstructure. The headwinds have been accompanied by rain, hail and snow.

The Berengaria left Cherbourg, Dec. 2, and was due here on Tuesday. The company said last night it would not reach Quarantine before Wednesday noon.

GRAVOIS AVENUE TO BE OPEN ENTIRE LENGTH TOMORROW

Street, Has Been Widened and Paved at Cost of More than $2,000,000.
Gravois avenue, from Twelfth to Grand boulevard, widened to a 100-foot thoroughfare and paved with asphalt, will be opened to traffic tomorrow throughout its length. Some sections were opened earlier as the paving progressed.

Widening the street cost $1,854,722 and paving $555,565. Property owners are being taxed $267,896 for paving and $1,619,926 for widening, the rest coming from bond issue funds.

The widened street affords a new traffic artery from the south-west portion of the city to downtown. Synchronized electric traffic signals will be installed from Grand boulevard to Twelfth street within a few weeks.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Rapid Transit lines have reported their first general decline in traffic in 16 years.

For the fiscal year ending June 30 last, subway, elevated, surface and bus lines reported to the Transit Commission a decrease of 111,300,000 passengers, or 3.4 per cent, compared with the preceding year. In all, 1,311,800,000 passengers were carried.

HORNED RABBITS IN MINNESOTA
Two Are Bagged by Son of Magnus Johnson.
ST. PAUL, Minn., Dec. 7.—Horned rabbits have been added to nature's list of curiosities to substantiate an old tradition that strange animals existed in Stearns County.

Proof was found in the office of Gov. Floyd B. Olson, where one of the creatures, smaller than the common jack rabbit but larger than the cotton tail, was displayed. Another was sent to the Division of Animal Biology at the University of Minnesota. Each has two horns about an inch in diameter and about two inches long. They were bagged by Francis Johnson, son of former United States Senator Magnus Johnson of Kimball, Minn., and Frank Olson, of Lake Sylvia.

Motorcycle Fleet Accompanies Marchers Who Carry Banners and Shout "Fight for Bread."

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Twice refused admission to the Capitol, the 1500 unemployed demonstrators today gave up their attempt to present relief demands from the floor of Congress and marched toward the White House.

First a large delegation and then a small one sought to reach the chamber where only Senators are allowed. They bore with them a demand for unemployment insurance.

Refused admittance, they sought to push their way past police, only to be shoved away.

They returned to admit failure to the crowd of demonstrators that assembled in front of the Capitol. Cheers greeted a speech by one of their leaders asserting Congress had refused to hear the demand of the unemployed.

They then went, as they had come, singing the "Internationale" and shouting "Fight for Bread."

Special Guards Placed.
As the demonstrators were leaving the Capitol, a patrol wagon drove up the west entrance to the White House grounds. It was followed by motor cycle policemen to augment those already there.

Special guards were posted at all entrances to the State, War and Navy buildings across the avenue from the White House.

The marchers arrived at the White House after a slow trek through back streets.

The cheering revived as they saw the crowd in front of the executive mansion.

After negotiations with police officers, Herbert Benjamin asked Richard L. Jervis, chief of the White House secret service, that they be permitted to present their petition personally to President Hoover.

Offers to Take Petition.
Jervis refused. As Benjamin insisted that it should be done, Jervis said:

"If you have a written petition, I will take it and see that it is handed immediately to President Hoover. Finally and for all, that's the best we can do. There is no use arguing further."

Faced with this ultimatum, Benjamin apparently accepted it and returned across the street to get the petition.

After a brief conference with other leaders, however, Benjamin refused to give Jervis a petition, either oral or written.

Flanked by police officials, Jervis informed them his decision was "absolute and irrevocable," that they should not enter.

MIKADO'S FLYERS KILL 300 IN BOMBING

All of Dead in Attack at Kungtapiu Said to Be Bandits—Band of 1000 Forced to Scatter.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Dec. 7.—Reports from Mukden, Manchuria, that about 300 Chinese were killed when Japanese airplanes bombed Kungtapiu, to the southwest, were confirmed in a dispatch to the Rengo (Japanese) News Agency today, which reached here as authoritative quarters admitted Mukden headquarters was planning a new campaign in the direction of Chinchow. The bombing took place yesterday, the dispatch said, and the Chinese killed were bandits.

Official circles expressed the hope their objectives still could be gained by peaceful means, but they added further trouble was indicated in War Office reports that the Chinese are rushing additional defense works at numerous points near Chinchow and that further concentrations of Chinese troops are taking place at Newchuan, Tahushan and other places.

Chinese Well Equipped.
If another drive does take place, military circles said, it probably will be a major operation lasting several weeks. This opinion apparently was based on official news indicating that Chinese forces in the Chinchow region number as high as 45,000 and are well equipped.

According to the Mukden dispatch, Japanese pilots reported most of their bombs effective and the raids, which were extensive, directed against a force of about 1000 bandits, which was scattered by the attack.

The dispatches from Mukden also reported Gen. Honjo, Japanese commander, issued a final warning to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang to evacuate his forces behind the great wall.

The fact that these dispatches passed the Japanese censor was taken here to indicate they must have had the sanction of high authorities.

Thinks Chang Responsible.
According to official circles here Japan looks to Chang Hsueh-liang alone to save the Chinchow situation from developing seriously. In view of the fact that the Chinese Government at Nanking washed its hands of the neutral zone proposal, it was said, and that Chinchow is held to be clearly without the limits of the League, official circles saw only one way out and that is to try to force Chang to take the responsibility himself.

The Government, it was stated, is determined to try every way possible to avoid a collision at Chinchow but there will be imminent danger of a clash so long as Marshal Chang's troops continue what is held here to be a threatening attitude along the Liao River west of the Peiping-Mukden Railway.

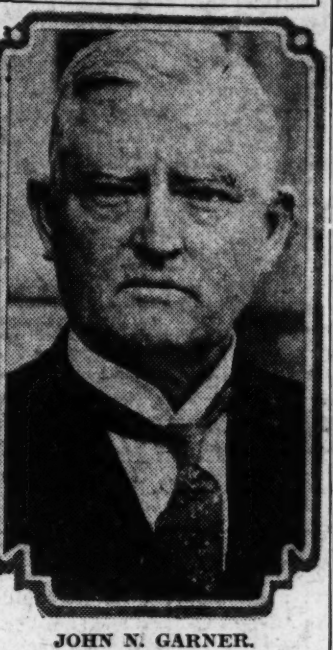

It was said authoritatively today that the Japanese Government was prepared to accept a suggestion by the League of Nations Council that Japan make a separate reservation regarding the right to suppress banditry in the proposed Chinchow neutral zone, which the League would establish in Manchuria. This, however, would be on the understanding that no counter-reservation nullifying that made by Japan would be permitted.

The Government also has decided, it was said, to agree to the formula proposed by its League representative, Nobumi Ito, regarding the scope of the proposed neutral commission of inquiry in Manchuria, and instructions to this effect probably will be sent to Ito tonight.

LIFE TERM GIVEN
KILLED POLICEMAN

Earl Reed Shot Patrolman McCormack in Cigar Store Holdup in 1929—Pleads Guilty.

Earl Reed, ex-convict, slayer of a St. Louis policeman, pleaded guilty of murder and robbery today before Circuit Judge Beck and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The life imprisonment sentence was for the murder of Patrolman William McCormack, in a cigar store holdup June 26, 1929. In addition, Judge Beck sentenced Reed to 10 years in prison each, upon his plea of guilty to two robbery charges. The three sentences are to run concurrently.

No Rule on Parole Application.
No hard and fast rule has been established by the State Penal Board upon the length of time a prisoner may serve before he may present an application for parole.

On short sentences, however, parole applications usually are heard after one-third of the term has been served. Several of the murderers sentenced to life imprisonment in St. Louis courts have been released after serving from 10 to 14 years, although the Penal Board sometimes considers parole applications of life-term prisoners who have served five or six years.

Others Get Life Terms.
No recommendation was made by the Circuit Attorney's office in the murder. Thomas C. Hennings Jr., prosecutor in Judge Beck's court, told the judge the State was ready to try Reed before a jury and believed it would obtain a conviction. He then related the general facts of the murder, stating that Reed had confessed that "either by accident or design," he fired the shots that killed McCormack.

Judge Beck announced he had gone into the case exhaustively. He recalled that other defendants in the murder had received life sentences and asserted he felt the "best interests of justice" would be served by imposing a life sentence.

Hennings recommended sentences of 10 years for the robberies, June 10 and June 18, 1929, when a total of $1850 was stolen. Admitted Killing When Brought Here From Idaho Prison.

Last October, after he was returned to St. Louis from Boise, Idaho, where he was serving a prison term for robbery, Reed readily admitted the killing of Patrolman McCormack to Detective Captain Egenriether, who was then Acting Chief of Detectives.

Reed insisted the killing was accidental. Capt. Egenriether said, asserting he struck the policeman on the head twice with an automatic pistol and each time the weapon was accidentally discharged.

Reed's story, as related by Egenriether, was that he met William P. Maloney, Eugene F. Wars and Joseph Daher, who are serving life sentences for participation in the murder, through Ernie Wallace, a St. Louis ex-convict with whom he Hoover Budget to Follow on Wednesday, With Request for Ratification of Moratorium Next on Program.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—While a motley army of 1500 black and white "hunger marchers" surrounded by a cordon of policemen, sang on the Capitol Plaza and sent up shrill cries for unemployment insurance, the first session of the Seventy-second Congress began its work today.

The extraordinary scenes on the outside, where police with riot guns and clubs by peaceful means but when the marchers and the Capitol, were in sharp contrast with the routine proceedings in the two chambers of Congress.

Novels, however, was lent to the House session by the assumption of control by the Democrats after 12 years of Republican rule.

Factional differences forgotten for the moment, the Democratic majority, as prearranged, swung in behind John N. Garner of Texas and elected him Speaker to succeed the late Nicholas Longworth. Organization of the House committees with Democratic chairmen will follow.

On the Senate side, with its smaller numbers, the whole business of the day had been transacted before the initial roll call was finished in the House.

Assembling amid the backslapping that always marks the start of a session, the Senators were called to order by the Vice President at noon, and proceeded, after the opening prayer, to the swearing in of new members and those re-elected last year.

Bankhead Contest Cause.
The routine of the oath-taking was interrupted by Senator Shortridge (Rep.), California, chairman of the Privileges and Elections Committee, who had reported on the status of the contests against Bailey of North Carolina and Bankhead of Alabama. "In neither case," he said, was the committee ready to report. He made no objection to the swearing in of Bailey and Bankhead, and both of them took the oath.

Former Senator Tom Heflin, who claims that Bankhead ousted him by fraud and corruption, was a conspicuous figure in the chamber. He nodded with satisfaction when Shortridge said the Elections Committee, in the course of its uncompleted hearings, had uncovered thousands of violations of the election law in Alabama—violations which had raised a doubt whether the election was valid.

Shortridge said the committee would complete its investigation of the Pritchard-Bailey and Heflin-Bankhead contests as soon as possible and report its findings to the Senate. It will then be within the power of the Senate to declare either of the contested seats vacant.

Mrs. Hattie Caraway, the new Senator from Arkansas, succeeding her late husband, refrained from taking the oath today, as she did W. W. Barbour, who has been appointed Senator from New Jersey to succeed the late Dwight W. Morrow. Both of them are expected to present themselves tomorrow. Another absentee was the picturesque J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois.

The Senate noted the deaths of Senators Caraway and Morrow with resolutions of regret and adjourned after the customary appointment of committees to notify the President and the House that it was ready for business. No mention was made of the impending fight to oust Senator Moses as president pro tem.

KILLED ROBBING BANK ON EVE OF TRIAL FOR HOLDUP

WAS FACING HENRY LAW CHARGE HERE

Widow Says He Left Home Tuesday "Looking for Work" and Was to Have Returned Yesterday.

By the Associated Press. JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 7.—A bank robber killed by a posse of Edwards, Miss., citizens Saturday afternoon in frustrating a holdup of the Bank of Edwards was identified last night as John W. Behm, 24 years old, 3017 Wisconsin avenue, St. Louis.

The body was identified by Behm's widow, Mrs. Margaret Behm, and his brother, Fred Behm, of St. Louis, who said that Behm was to have faced trial today in St. Louis for a holdup of an insurance collector last July. His wife said he left St. Louis last Tuesday "looking for work" and that he had promised to return yesterday if he were successful.

He was killed as he and two companions and the cashier of the bank, whom they had kidnapped, were fleeing in an automobile. His companions abandoned the automobile, leaving the cashier and the body of the slain man in it, and escaped through fields and swamps. The cashier, W. A. Montgomery Jr., set off a burglar alarm when the robbers entered the bank, summoning citizens who waited outside. Loring Montgomery, as a shield, the robbers ran to the automobile. In a two-mile chase, Behm was killed by bullets fired by the posse. Montgomery said that the two surviving robbers threatened to kill him in retaliation for Behm's death, but abandoned the idea when a flat tire forced them to stop the automobile and flee.

In their escape they commandeered a Negro's mule and rode it through swamps to a country road, where they found a black woman to drive them for a distance in her automobile.

Behm Was to Have Gone to Trial Here Today.

Behm was to have appeared in Circuit Judge Percy's Court today on charges of robbery under the Henry law and attempted robbery. The robbery charge was based on a holdup July 14, when Edwin C. Kuse, a collector for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., was robbed of $54 by a young man who forced himself into Kuse's automobile at Grand boulevard and Miami street and took the money at the point of a revolver. The robber forced Kuse to drive to California avenue and Wyoming street. The attempted holdup occurred July 21 when a young man attempted to take $1200 from Samuel Wiedersheim, 2127 Alfred avenue, a collector for the same company, as he drove up in front of his offices at 1410 South Jefferson avenue.

Wiedersheim, after arguing with the man, leaped out of the machine and ran into the office. A description of the man was broadcast over the police radio and Behm was arrested at Mississippi and Geyer avenues a short time afterward.

Behm formerly was employed as a clerk and formerly lived at 2708 Wyoming street with his wife and a 6-year-old son. He was out on $10,000 bond in the robbery case and $5000 bond in connection with the attempted robbery. His identity was traced through articles in his pockets which bore St. Louis and East St. Louis addresses.

than the six who had been allowed to enter came out and the march got under way for the Washington Auditorium for a mass meeting. President William Green of the American Federation of Labor told the committee calling on him that the leaders who inspired the march were not "interested in helping the working people or solving their economic problems." "They do not want relief," he told them. "They represent communism. They want to overthrow the Government and substitute the Soviet Union. We know who these leaders are and what their true purposes are."

Brigadier-General Pelham D. Glasford, superintendent of Metropolitan police, cruised on a motor cycle through John Marshall place where the marchers were gathering.

The demonstrators—headed by a band—began their march to the Capitol shortly after 10:30. Men and women, white and Negro, they marched four abreast under close scrutiny of police. Officers on motor cycles escorted the marchers. Curious spectators viewed the demonstrators in silence.

There were no signs, banners or placards when the marchers got under way. At the same time squads of police took their posts on the steps of the Capitol entrance with riot guns and sawed-off shotguns. Others were gathered inside the building.

Locked and Barricaded. The main front door of the Capitol at the top of the great steps was closed, locked and barricaded with a couple of chains and a hatrack. Whether it would be opened later was not indicated.

Senator Norris of Nebraska called the exhibition of automatic rifles and tear gas guns "a great mistake."

Singing and shouting "fight for food" the marchers wound slowly around the Peace Monument at the foot of Capitol Hill and started up the roadway leading to the Senate wing. The band played the "Internationale" as they marched. As the marchers approached more than 2000 persons lined the plaza in front of the Capitol.

As the procession drew even with the Senate steps, they began singing the "Internationale," a tall Negro in the front ranks swinging his hands to measure time. The marchers broke into a shout after the first stanza and the air was taken up by those behind.

They carried banners demanding unemployment insurance. The delegation selected to present their petition to the House was headed by Herbert Benjamin, one of the organizers. Harry Harvey of Pittsburgh was chosen to present the plea to the Senate, and William Polindexter, a Cleveland Negro, will head the White House delegation.

Glasford looked over the banners carried by the marchers and decided that none of them was of inflammatory nature. Glasford, in full police uniform, rode at the head of the parade.

The song died away and a chant, "We demand unemployment insurance," was taken up.

Emphasizing the words with their hands, the line marched steadily past the Senate and on the House wing of the Capitol. One large banner immediately behind the band bore the inscription, "Down with charity sloop; we want full cash payment."

The marchers formed a half circle directly in front of the Capitol and led by gyrating cheer leaders, renewed their chant.

As the chanting continued the cars of Senators, Cabinet officers and members of the House rolled up under the portico to discharge passengers.

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of Interior, and Mrs. Walter Brown, wife of the Postmaster-General, paused for a moment to look.

had escaped from a prison at Greencastle, Ind., where Reed was serving a one-year sentence for larceny.

"Daher suggested that we hold up the Ideal Cigar Store at 3908 South Broadway," Capt. Egnerie-ther quoted Reed as saying. "Before that we had pulled several sticks out around town. Maloney drove us down there and a block away we let Daher out because he was known in the neighborhood. Maloney stayed at the wheel and I went into the store."

"We asked for cigarettes and when the man behind the counter turned to get them we pulled out our guns and told him it was a holdup. I went behind the counter to get the money and then I saw the policeman, readings a newspaper in the back room. I went back there, slapped the newspaper out of his hands and told him to 'stick 'em up'."

"He didn't move and I hit him on the side of the head with my automatic. He reached for his gun and I hit him again. The pistol went off both times."

Reed and Ware then ran out, the confusion went on to say, and drove away with Maloney. They went first to a rooming house and then to the home of James McGauley, near St. James, Mo., where they hid for eight days. McGauley is now serving a life sentence for the murder of Todd V. Phelps, cashier of the Overland State Bank, in a holdup several years ago.

At the St. James refuge were Reed, his wife and child, Winfield Seeman and his wife, Maloney and Wallace. Seeman, a former convict, has since been killed in a quarrel with his associate, Major-General Lytle Brown. The Chief of Army Engineers emphasized he had yet to receive specific cases of ill treatment, as charged by American Federation of Labor representatives.

On returning from an inspection trip of Mississippi flood control work under him, he said "We will soon know the truth; inquiry is under way."

The officer pointed out Government inspectors are on the projects all the time who can ascertain the facts, although normally they did not attempt to interfere with relations between the contractors and their labor.

The four men were suspected because a woman associate of Maloney boasted in a beer flat that she knew all about the murder of Patrolman McCormack. Questioned, she told police what Maloney had told her.

RAIL UNIONS POSTPONE DISCUSSION OF PAY CUT

To Take Up Roads' Proposal on Wednesday—Shorter Hours Considered.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The problem of reduced wages was laid aside today as executives of the leading railway unions considered plans for shorter working hours.

The labor chiefs, who were to decide this week whether to accept a 10 per cent wage reduction for a year, met in secret sessions, but it was announced the subject for discussion was not the rail executives' proposal.

That problem will be taken up Wednesday in a meeting of 1500 general union chairmen, the leaders said, and until then the principal topic will be stabilization of employment, the spreading of work and particularly shorter work days.

There was some indication that the unions might look to Congress for at least some help in the solution of the general rail problem. Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the Railway Labor Executives' Association, called attention to a resolution for a joint congressional committee which he said Senator Coughens had announced he would introduce.

"It can be assumed," Richberg said, that the resolution "may have considerable influence upon the deliberations of the general chairmen."

The six-hour day had a strong proponent in President T. C. Cushman of the Switchmen's Union. It is the "only practical solution for the present economic conditions which are strangling the railroads," he said. He predicted that, however, if the transition might seem to be now, it would be made and would prove to be a benefit both to the men and to the carriers.

Richberg said it was unfortunate that on the eve of the important meeting of union leaders, the Chicago & North Western should have "declined to arbitrate a wage reduction which was proposed to the maintenance of way employees some time ago."

Southern Pacific Orders Reduction in Salaries. By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A reduction of 10 per cent in the salaries of all officers and employees of the Southern Pacific Railway Co., excepting those under contract or group wage agreements, has been ordered to take effect Jan. 1, according to an announcement made by the company in New York.

The announcement adds that negotiations for similar reductions are in progress or will be started with unions representing members of the company's employees.

Similar reductions for employees on the company's lines in Mexico, are also under consideration through the procedure provided by the laws of that country.

The Southern Pacific is the third large railway system to announce its intention to reduce salaries and wages of unionized forces. Officials of the New York Central and Erie have announced similar negotiations were being started to cut the payroll 10 per cent. Recently the Chicago & Northwestern requested a 15 per cent cut all along the line.

PROMISE TO CORRECT ANY LABOR ABUSES IN LEVEE CAMPS

Chief of Army Engineers Declares "We Will Soon Know the Truth."

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—A promise to correct any proved abuses of labor in the Mississippi levee camps was made today by Major-General Lytle Brown, the Chief of Army Engineers.

On returning from an inspection trip of Mississippi flood control work under him, he said "We will soon know the truth; inquiry is under way."

The officer pointed out Government inspectors are on the projects all the time who can ascertain the facts, although normally they did not attempt to interfere with relations between the contractors and their labor.

TO YEARS FOR KILLING THREE IN SAFETY ZONE

Kansas City Driver Pleads Guilty of Manslaughter in Deaths of Women.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 7.—Andrew Jackson, Negro driver, who struck and fatally injured three women in a safety zone Friday night, was sentenced today to serve 10 years in the State penitentiary on three charges of manslaughter. Jackson appeared before T. A. J. Mastin, an assistant prosecutor, this morning and admitted he was in the safety zone at the time of the accident. He expressed a desire to appear in court and plead guilty to charges of manslaughter.

He was sentenced to 10 years on one count, and to five years each on two counts, the sentences to run concurrently.

The victims of the accident were Miss Louise Hart, who died a few minutes after the accident; Ruth Herod who died the following day, and Mrs. Vergil Collier who died Sunday.

according to an official spokesman, and Chinese troops will be ordered to resist in the event of a Japanese attack.

The spokesman's statement was made in connection with dispatches from Mukden, which reached here by wire of Tokio yesterday, saying Gen. Honjo, Japanese commander, told Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang at Peiping to withdraw his soldiers from the Chinchow area.

Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese Foreign Minister, who announced his resignation Saturday, withdrew it after a unanimous appeal from Government officials.

China continues to object to the League's resolution on the establishment of a neutral zone, the spokesman said, because no date has been set for the completion of the Japanese withdrawal and because Japan was offered, police rights in the proposed zone.

Observers Deny Chinese Activity in Chinchow Area. PARIS, Dec. 7.—Reports from French and British military observers of the Chinchow area in Manchuria, relayed to the League of Nations Council here, say there is no Chinese military activity in the area, as Japanese military circles at Mukden have said.

There have been no movements of Chinese troops on railways north of the Great Wall," the British observer reported. "Japanese reports that the Chinchow area has been reinforced by 12 to 30 trains of troops can not be confirmed."

Garner Elected Speaker of the House

the speakership election was the margin of Garner's victory. He received 215 votes as against 207 for Snell. Every Democrat in the House voted for him except himself. On the other hand, four of the Wisconsin Republican progressives and Kvale, the Minnesota Farmer-Laborite, cast their ballots for Representative Schneider of Wisconsin, apparently for the purpose of insuring Garner's election. Only one member of the House—Representative Taylor (Rep.), Tennessee—was absent. He is ill at his home.

As the result of the election was announced, the Democrats came to their feet cheering wildly, and the shrill yipping of the Rebel yell split the air and echoed from the walls.

The new Speaker was presented to the House by his unsuccessful opponent, Snell, said he believed "a country is especially favored which has two strong, equally balanced political parties." He considered the speakership the highest office in the gift of any legislative body.

Garner's speech of acceptance was more realistic. He said he had made no promises to obtain the office, and would make none now. It was customary for a Speaker on such occasions to indicate the majority legislative program, but he felt it would be inappropriate. Later he would present a full program.

Mrs. Garner, who has been her husband's secretary and closest adviser throughout his long career in Congress, sat in the gallery weeping quietly from happiness and pride. She was plainly dressed in black with a touch of white at the throat.

Largest Attendance. The House was called to order by Tyler Page, the clerk, promptly at noon. The appearance of the chamber furnished a graphic illustration of what had happened to the Republican party in the Congressional elections. Both sides of the chamber were well filled, and no one could have told by looking which outnumbered the other.

After the opening prayer, Page then sent it to the printers. Representatives-elect would be called by states "to determine whether a quorum is present." This explanation brought a gale of laughter from the floor, since it was known that today's attendance was the largest in the history of the House, and marked the first time in more than 100 years when every member answered the roll call except one.

Representative John Q. Tilson, deposed as Republican leader, partly because his colleagues considered him too pliable to the wishes of the White House, sat in the rear row. It was learned that Tilson, at the Republican caucus which decided his fate, tearfully told his colleagues that his standing as leader probably would cause his defeat for re-election next year.

Some of the members had small children on their laps—an old custom. There was a festive atmosphere about the proceedings, although doubtless there were pangs of regret for lost chairmanships and vanishing patronage.

Floor Leader Rainey announced that he would present the proposed new rules of the House tomorrow. They will include several reforms, notably a provision whereby bills may be brought to the floor on the petition of 145 members.

The Democratic slate of House officers was elected on a viva voce vote. They are: South Trimble of Kentucky, clerk; Joseph Starnes of Virginia, doorkeeper; Kenneth Romney of Montana, sergeant-at-arms, and Finis E. Scott of Tennessee, Postmaster of the House.

Mr. Hoover's Message Goes to Congress Tomorrow. By the Associated Press. Mr. Hoover's messages will be read separately tomorrow in the Senate and House. The President will transmit on Wednesday the voluminous budget carrying his recommendations for appropriations to carry on the Government during the coming year. On Thursday he will send to Capitol Hill for ratification his one-year moratorium on inter-governmental debts, already in effect with a majority of Congress pledged to its support.

The President read over his message to the Republican leaders—Senator Watson of Indiana and Representative Snell of New York—at a White House meeting. He then sent it to the printers. Senator Watson described it as "a forward looking, constructive document dealing principally with economics and finance."

The Senate will receive early in the week several score nominations by the President for confirmation. Among the important nominations will be new members for the Tariff Commission and Farm Board, numerous judicial appointees and new members in almost every branch of the administrative Government.

Two Blind Men in Senate. For the first time the Senate will have two blind members—Schall of Minnesota and Gore of Oklahoma. Schall is a Republican and Gore a Democrat. Both are veterans in the national legislative hall. Schall is beginning his second term. He served several terms in the House. Gore is returning to the Senate after a term he ended in 1923. Each has a special place at his service, although Senator Schall is also standing by a giant police dog as his companion on trips between the Capitol and the office building.

Taking his oath as a representative for the tenth time today is a man who 69 years ago saw Jefferson Davis inaugurated as the only President of the Confederacy, Clement Cabell Dickinson, Missouri Democrat, as a 13-year-old boy was a Second Sergeant in the 2nd Davis Guards, detailed to defend railroad bridges against cavalry raids at night. He was in Richmond in February, '62, when Davis came to take office. Except for being turned out by Republicans twice, he has been in the House since 1910. Now he's just back for the third time.

Start of Long Session. The session is expected to last up to the even of the nominating conventions next June. Among new members who reached their places in the Senate today are:

LEXINGTON TOBACCO SALES STOPPED BY ANGRY FARMERS

By the Associated Press. LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 7.—A crowd of 1500 farmers halted the opening weekly tobacco sales at all four warehouses where sales had been scheduled here today. Led by George Weir, Georgetown, Ky., whom police twice unsuccessfully attempted to arrest, the farmers marched from one warehouse to another and demonstrated so vociferously that managers of the houses stopped the sales.

Objections to prices, which ranged from $10 to $12 per hundred, compared with $18 last year, was the cause of the farmers' action.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 7.—Sales of tobacco got under way today at Louisville, at Owensboro and Henderson, dark leaf market. Prices were somewhat higher than last week.

Out of about 3,000,000 pounds of dark leaf tobacco on the warehouse floors at Owensboro the first 39,000 pounds sold today brought an average of $44 a 100, compared with $43.93 last week and about $8 a year ago.

The Circuit Attorney said fine agreement had been reached in a conference with Tipton's lawyer, William H. Baer. The circuit fine in concealed weapon of the past has been $100. Guilty pleas were entered by Tipton and the prosecution office.

The Circuit Attorney said, however, that Baer was willing to a to the larger fine because of client is a brother of Roy Tipton mail robber and burglar, now serving a term at Jefferson City penitentiary and scheduled for trial to Leavenworth in January to serve a 15-year mail robbery sentence under a revocation.

Only One Accused. Although the State, by the circuit Attorney's statement, was certain whether it could prove Tipton the owner of the pistol found in the car, the two arrested with him in the mail Joseph Mestres and John Kell are not under indictment. Circuit Attorney told reporters around jury first returned a bill naming them as defendants, then withdrew the indictment, leaving Tipton alone under the charge.

The original warrant against Tipton in the case charged with being a habitual criminal. Conviction on this charge would have made mandatory the two maximum sentence for carrying concealed weapon. The grand did not indict him for habitual criminality, however.

This amendment in the charge the Circuit Attorney explained, saying he and his associates had convinced a jury was unlikely to convict Tipton of habitual criminality. The only basis for charge in addition to the concealed weapon case was his conviction in 1921 for degree burglary and larceny. On his plea of guilty in that case he was sentenced two years in the penitentiary; the sentence was changed to a fine to serve the time in the Reformatory.

The Circuit Attorney said his associates were of the opinion this was too remote a conviction to be taken into account for a which also would be likely to affect it from consideration because Tipton was only 18 years old at the time.

Recommendation for the fine was presented to Judge by Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas C. Hennings Jr., and to Judge Beck's court.

HERMAN TIPTON LET OFF WITH FINE ON PISTOL CHARGE

Head of Cuckoos Permitted to Plead Guilty and Pay $500 to Escape Possible Prison Term.

TWO REVOLVERS FOUND IN AUTO

Since Two Other Men Were in Car, Circuit Attorney Thinks Proof of Case Would Be Difficult.

By arrangement with Circuit Attorney Franklin Miller, Herman Tipton, ex-convict and notorious head of the Cuckoo gang, was allowed to plead guilty of carrying a concealed weapon before Circuit Judge Beck today and was fined $500. Maximum penalty for the offense is two years in the penitentiary.

By entering the plea with the certainty that he would escape with a fine, Tipton avoided the necessity of placing the case in the hands of a jury with the possibility that he might draw a workhouse or penitentiary sentence.

Arrested more than 100 times, Tipton has been an active figure in the St. Louis gang strife of the last 10 years. He was arrested on the concealed weapon charge when policemen found two loaded pistols in an automobile in which he sat with two other men at Grand and Park avenues, on Nov. 4 last.

Reason for Agreement.

The fact that the two men were alone was largely responsible for the state's willingness to agree to the fine on a plea of guilty. Circuit Attorney Miller said to reporters, he said it was his own opinion it would be difficult to prove Tipton in possession of the weapons since the other two also were in the car with him.

The Circuit Attorney said the fine agreement had been reached in a conference with Tipton's lawyer, William Baer. The customary fine in concealed weapon cases in the past has been $100 where guilty pleas were entered by arrangement with the prosecutor's office.

The Circuit Attorney said, however, that Baer was willing to agree to the larger fine because of the fact, among other reasons, that his client is a brother of Roy Tipton, mail robber and burglar, now serving a term at Jefferson City penitentiary and scheduled for transfer to Leavenworth in January to resume serving a 15-year mail robbery sentence under a revoked parole.

It was stated at the conference, Miller said, that Herman Tipton, the gang leader, should have to take some additional onus for the career of Roy Tipton the mail robber and burglar.

Only One Accused.

Although the state, by the Circuit Attorney's statement, was uncertain whether it could prove Tipton the owner of the pistols found in the car, the two men arrested with him in the machine, Joseph Mestres and John Killian, are not under indictment. The Circuit Attorney told reporters the grand jury first returned a true bill naming them as defendants, then withdrew the indictment, leaving Tipton alone under the charge.

The original warrant against Tipton in the case charged him with being a habitual criminal. Conviction on this charge would have made mandatory the two-year maximum sentence for carrying a concealed weapon. The grand jury did not indict him for habitual criminality, however.

The amendment in the charge the Circuit Attorney explained by saying he and his associates were convinced a jury was unlikely to convict Tipton of habitual criminality. The only basis for the charge in addition to the concealed weapons case was his conviction in 1921 for second degree burglary and larceny. On his plea of guilty in that case he was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary but the sentence was changed to allow him to serve the time in Booneville Reformatory.

The Circuit Attorney said he and his associates were of the opinion this was too remote a conviction to be taken into account for a jury which also would be likely to reject it from consideration because Tipton was only 18 years old at the time.

Recommendation for the $500 fine was presented to Judge Beck by Assistant Circuit Attorney Thomas C. Hennings Jr., assigned to Judge Beck's court.

Contract Bridge Contest To Test Merits of Two Systems Begins Tonight

MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON. Associated Press Photo. WITH her children, JOYCE, 3½ years old, and ELY JR., 2½. She will play with her husband, Ely Culbertson, in the 150-rubber test of their bridge system with Sidney S. Lenz and partner, beginning in New York City tonight.

Ely Culbertson and Sidney Lenz Will Stake Reputations and Future Incomes on Games Behind Locked Doors.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A marathon game of cards which is exciting millions of people will start tonight.

One player whose methods have given him a millionaire's income is so confident that he has bet 5 to 1. The wager is that he will defeat another whom he acknowledges has no superior in actual play, whom many acclaim as the world's best and who, as an amateur magician, has gained enormously by the professional gamblers cards and spades.

So much is at stake that the United States Army will take care that things are according to Hoyle of a latter day.

Woman is on the same footing as man in a competition known of which will have fast international transmission.

To the fact that his wife will be his partner and is largely responsible for his success in a game which has brought him romance and riches, Ely Culbertson attributes the widespread interest in his contract bridge match with Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby.

Game Behind Locked Doors.

After a little ceremony at 8 o'clock tonight the elaborate drawing room of Culbertson's skyscraper apartment off Park avenue will be cleared of all but players, referees, scorekeeper and butler. The doors will be locked. New decks of cards will be shuffled by the referee. A quartet will cut. Then begins a test of rival bidding systems in a game which has spread like optimism during a bull market, displacing its parent, auction bridge, more rapidly than auction did whist.

Culbertson and Lenz have contracted to play 150 rubbers by Jan. 15. They will move across Park avenue from the Chatham to the Waldorf after a while. Culbertson estimates there will be 1000 hands. The duration of the match will be almost six weeks. There will be play every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights. Further sessions will be ordered if necessary. The last rubber of a session must start before 12:30 a. m.

Culbertson has posted $5000 against $1000 by Lenz. Any winnings go to charities specified in the contract.

Methods of Bidding.

The rivals' methods of playing once the dummy is down are alike. In fact Culbertson has freely said Lenz is one of the 10 best. Many players regard Lenz as incomparable in Sherlock Holmes ability to deduce from bids, leads, dummy and conventions long established in whist and auction just what each player holds. They think also he is the master of all in squeeze and elimination plays, grand coups and the like.

To the average amateur player of contract the match probably will test original bids of two more than anything else. Such bids are forcing in the Culbertson system, requiring partner to continue at least until a game contract is reached. Lenz makes original bids of two on fewer tricks than Culbertson, and the bid merely invites partner to continue on it possible. Lenz thinks there is too much of a difference of card values between Culbertson bids of one and bids of two. Culbertson argues that when

PLAYERS AND RULES IN CONTRACT BRIDGE SUPREMACY CONTEST

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.

HERE is the Culbertson-Lenz contract bridge situation as a glance:

Participants.

Ely Culbertson, Russian emigre of American descent, who has gained wealth and a great following with a system of bidding in the game of contract, will play with

Mrs. Josephine Murphy Culbertson, to whom he gives much of the credit for his success, against Sidney S. Lenz, landowner, author, amateur magician, exponent of the so-called "official" system, recognized by Culbertson as a player without a superior, and Oswald Jacoby, actuary, amateur contract expert, former football player, the youngest of the four.

Conditions.

One hundred and fifty rubbers, to start at 8 o'clock tonight and to be completed by Jan. 15. Last rubber of a session must begin before 12:30 a. m.

Play, Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights; and other sessions if necessary. Possessor of net score, meaning highest total score, after 150 rubbers wins.

Standard rules of contract prevail. Each side must play its own system.

an original bid of one is made with a hand much stronger than the minimum, if the partner can't go on there is not a game in the two hands.

Fight to the Finish.

But much more than $5000 is involved. The prestige of victory will add enormously to the potential income of the winner from writings, lectures and the like on the "best" system. Somebody's income tax will take a sharp drop and Uncle Sam won't be able to do anything about it.

Laws and ethics of contract bridge as published by the Whist Club of New York will prevail. This means the same regulations that govern any social game. The man on the spot to see that they are enforced will be Lieut. Alfred M. Gruenthor, who is attached to West Point and as an avocation is a specialist in the conduct of bridge tournaments. He bosses them smartly. His uniform lends emphasis to dicta.

AUTO-TRAIN CRASH THAT KILLED TWO HELD ACCIDENTAL

Verdicts Returned in Case of Man and Woman Victims of Collision at Livingston, Ill.

Accident verdicts were returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Emma Tiek Sawyer and E. Alonso Baldwin, both of Staunton, Ill., who were killed Saturday midnight when Baldwin's automobile, in which they were riding, crashed into the side of a moving coal train near Livingston, Ill., two miles southeast of Staunton.

Two inquests were held inasmuch as Mrs. Sawyer, who was killed outright, died in Madison County, while Baldwin, fatally injured, succumbed in Macoupin County, in an ambulance on the way to Litchfield.

Mrs. Sawyer was the wife of T. A. Sawyer, a carpenter, who has been employed in St. Louis recently. Baldwin was superintendent of a coal washer for the Consolidated Coal Co. of Staunton. Mrs. Sawyer's husband, who frequently came home over the week-end, did not do so Saturday.

The Sawyer and Baldwin families were close friends and were distantly related by marriage. Baldwin and Mrs. Sawyer had been in a Livingston soft drink establishment until a few moments before the accident.

Baldwin's automobile struck the eighth car from the rear of the train. The train was stopped and members of the crew hurried back to the intersection where they found Mrs. Sawyer dead and Baldwin injured but still conscious. Baldwin refused to give the name of his companion and she was identified by a card found in her pocketbook.

Baldwin was 53 years, old and childless. Mrs. Sawyer, 45, had one son.

books, including Culbertson. The snowball started gently downhill when Culbertson came out. It gained momentum and other experts became alarmed. They patched up their differences to devise a so-called official system, the talking point being the necessity of averting confusion. Would Culbertson go in? Get aboard my handwagon, he answered in effect. Came an official convention. Culbertson was roasted. He challenged the ace of the "official" system, Lenz.

Just before the battle of champions they say.

Culbertson—Such outstanding players might win in spite of the handicap of the so-called official system.

Lenz—We cannot fail to win, given a break in the cards.

3 INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Three persons were injured in a collision between two automobiles at Lindell boulevard and Theresa avenue early yesterday. Homer Laney, a clerk, 5598 Waterman avenue, suffered an injury to his skull. Miss Pauline Mackey, 7296 Lyndover place, Maplewood, and Miss Alberta Kaiser, 5950A Hamilton terrace, riding with him, were cut and bruised.

After a collision of two automobiles at Kingshighway and Gibson avenue early today David Schwartz, 1604 Goodfellow avenue, driver of one machine, was struck in the face by the other driver, who fled. Schwartz obtained the license number and requested police to arrest the man.

LAD, 15, KILLED BY NEWSBOY GANG SEEKING REVENGE

Leader of Club in Detroit Says He Fired Fatal Shot but Intended Only to Scare Youngster.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 7. — A group of newsboys plotted revenge in their haymow clubhouse yesterday on Joe Przytylas, 15 years old, who had been accused of fighting small boys, and a few hours later Joe was killed by a rifle bullet.

Stanley Orlowski, 14, president of the organization known as the "Floyd Club," admitted to police he fired the shot, but insisted he meant only to frighten Joe.

He said he had borrowed the rifle as he, Joseph Sawicki, 14, and Anthony Mazur, 14, members of the club, were on their way to carry out the club's decision that Joe should be taught a lesson.

When they found Joe, Stanley drew a small rifle from his trousers' leg and, he says, fired at a coal scuttle, shouting "We'll teach you to beat up Longin."

But the bullet missed its mark and struck Joe just above the heart.

The three boys and Longin Jendrynski, 11, who had accused Joe of "picking on him," were held in the juvenile detention home last night. What is to be done with them will be decided today. County Prosecutor Harry S. Toy said he would require that they be required to face charges in Criminal Court.

Stanley and the Sawicki and Mazur boys fled after the shooting. They went to a show. It was there police found them.

"They made us miss the best part of the show," Stanley complained later.

Longin held his ground, helped lift Joe's body into an ambulance and told police who had shot him. Joe was an honor student in intermediate school. He sold papers outside school hours and, except for a small pension, provided the only income for his mother and two sisters.

Mathias Kauten, 45 years old, a machinist, 5339 West avenue, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter, and Mrs. Alice Stephenson, a widow, 4455 Wilcox avenue, were the persons killed. The three injured persons were cut and bruised. Several of those in the group were friends, who were on

INQUEST VERDICT BLAMES DRIVER IN KILLING OF TWO

John Bagy Accused of Criminal Carelessness in Running Down Five Persons in Safety Zone.

A Coroner's verdict of criminal carelessness was returned today against John Bagy, a heating contractor, whose motor truck killed two persons and injured three others in a safety zone at Broadway and Bates street Friday night.

Eleven witnesses testified and gave estimates of the speed at which Bagy was driving up grade varying from 20 to 40 miles an hour.

In refutation of Bagy's statement to police that he was blinded by the headlights of another automobile approaching from the opposite direction, the witnesses declared they did not remember seeing any other machine.

Contrary to the version given to police, the witnesses agreed that Bagy drove directly into the safety zone, and did not swerve his truck, as had been stated.

Several, who said they had been looking toward the south for the street car they were waiting to board, testified they saw the machine nearly a block away. The truck was straddling the east rail of the northbound street car tracks, and was in this position when it ran into the group of persons, who were standing between the rail and a painted line in the street, which marks the zone.

Mrs. Irene Blackwell, 521 A. Gravois avenue, and Mrs. Nellie Kaufman, 4329 Potomac street, members of the group, testified they leaped out of the way of the truck when they realized that the driver was not going to turn out. After running through the zone Bagy swerved to the left, the witnesses said.

Bagy took the witness chair, but did not testify on advice of his attorney. Bond was fixed at $5000 in each death. The case will be presented to the grand jury on Jan. 5.

Mathias Kauten, 45 years old, a machinist, 5339 West avenue, who was accompanied by his wife and daughter, and Mrs. Alice Stephenson, a widow, 4455 Wilcox avenue, were the persons killed. The three injured persons were cut and bruised. Several of those in the group were friends, who were on

LAUNDRY BOMBINGS LAID TO TRADE RIVALRY

This Is Explanation by One Manager — Other Can Not Explain Attack.

Business competition caused the bombing of two South St. Louis laundries Saturday night, in the opinion of George Leebolt, manager of the Holland Laundry, 4074 Dunnica avenue, one of the places damaged.

Leebolt explained his firm was independent and he had had disputes recently with other laundrymen.

"Ours is a small firm and the big fellows would like to put us out of business," Leebolt said. "According to their code, it is good business if they can get some of our business, but if we do likewise, they complain bitterly. Two weeks ago I had an argument with the owner of a large laundry because a former employee of his concern organized a route for himself and brought the work to us. That same proprietor previously took away one of our drivers, and a part of the customers the driver served and apparently thought he was doing a shrewd piece of business, with the joke on us."

Although several laundries today advertised price reductions, Leebolt said he did not anticipate a general "price war."

"The reduction may be part of a plan to drive the small fellows out of business, but our policy is quality service, and our prices will not be cut," Leebolt said.

Leebolt's opinion is not shared by A. W. Jaude, manager of the White Line Laundry, 4150 Chipewa street, the second establishment bombed. Jaude's firm formerly belonged to an association of laundrymen, dropping out a year ago. He says he has had no trouble and cannot account for the bombing.

The two laundries are about two blocks apart and the bombings are thought by police to have been the work of the same group of men. The explosion at the Holland Laundry occurred at 11 p. m. in the boiler room, the bomb being thrown through a window in the rear of the plant. The damage was estimated at $300.

The explosion at the White Line Laundry occurred 15 minutes later, a bomb having been placed on the roof. Neighbors told police they saw three men leave the vicinity in an automobile a few minutes before the blast occurred. A hole four feet in diameter was torn in the roof, the damage being estimated at $100.

FORMER POSTAL CLERK GETS 60 DAYS FOR THEFT OF MAIL

William F. Schmitz, formerly a postoffice clerk at Belleville, was sentenced to 60 days in jail by Federal Judge Wham in East St. Louis today for embezzlement of money sent through the mail. An additional sentence of one year was suspended and he will be placed on probation for two years.

Schmitz, a postal clerk for seven years, admitted taking about $300 from letters which passed through his hands during a year and a half. He needed the money, he said, to complete paying for his home. He is married and has four children, the oldest eight years old.

Postoffice inspectors arrested him last month when they found on his person $4.25 in marked money they had placed in three letters the day before.

KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS IN SHOP AND ROBBED

Fred Dold, Victim of Two Thieves at 221 North Channing, Other Crimes.

Fred Dold, operator of a shoe repair shop at 221 North Channing avenue, was knocked unconscious yesterday afternoon by two Negroes who robbed him of $15.

Dold, who lives at 5153 Page boulevard, was cleaning the shop when the Negroes entered. One struck him on the head with some object, felling him. When he recovered he found that the money had been taken from his purse. He was treated at City Hospital.

A man who ate a meal at Thompson's restaurant, 718 Olive street, early yesterday, robbed the night manager, George W. Galbraith, of $6. As he went to pay his check to Galbraith, he held his hand in his overcoat pocket as if he had a revolver and forced Galbraith to turn over the money. Three customers and another employee witnessed the robbery.

Two Negroes were seen running from the Alper Bros. Shoe Co., 1318 Biddle street, early yesterday.

after a plate glass window was broken and $20 worth of shoes taken.

Five shotguns and 10 rifles, identified as part of the loot taken from a hardware store at Columbia, Ill., Saturday night, were found in an automobile at 2360 Yale avenue, Maplewood, yesterday. Police arrested a man who gave his name as Lilburn Stubbs, a switchman, and who is said to have told the officers he "found" the weapons.

Laundry Manager Robbed of $342 in East St. Louis.

E. W. Hallmeyer, assistant manager of the Model Laundry in East St. Louis, was robbed of $342 Saturday night by two men who forced themselves into his automobile at a traffic signal at Tenth and State streets. They forced him to drive to Fourteenth street and Bond avenue, where they robbed him and tied his hands to the steering wheel of the automobile, making their escape in another machine. One man carried a revolver.

Frank J. Zitta, a grocer of 1133 North Second street, East St. Louis, shot and wounded a Negro early yesterday, reporting to police that he had seen the Negro carrying a sack of chickens away from the place. Police say a sack of chickens was found beside the Negro, who gave his name as James Hamilton of 312 Exchange avenue.

Details of Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Plans

THE thirty-second annual Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival will bring Christmas cheer to not less than 5000 needy homes through the distribution of dinner baskets on Christmas eve. More than 10,000 boys and girls of unfortunate families will be entertained with a monster celebration at which gifts will be given out Christmas morning in the Coliseum.

Owing to the limited number of seats only those holding tickets will be admitted to the Festival in the Coliseum. Tickets will be distributed at various places, the time and places to be announced later.

The Post-Dispatch Christmas Festival Committee does not employ any solicitors. The young women who distribute the lists do not take money. Contributions may be mailed or delivered to the cashier of the Post-Dispatch.

Every cent donated goes to the provision of Christmas cheer. The Post-Dispatch pays the cost of administration and the members of the executive committee gladly give their time to make sure that boys and girls of the less fortunate shall know the meaning of Christmas.

The success of the Christmas Festival depends on the generosity of the thousands of St. Louisans and residents of this vicinity whose nickels, dimes and quarters make up the bulk of the fund.

WOMAN CAUSES ARRESTS OF STENCH BOMB SUSPECTS

Manager of Chouteau Avenue Theater Follows Car and Gets License Number.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Mildred Bradley, manager of the Merry Widow Theater, 1435 Chouteau avenue, police yesterday arrested two men charged with throwing a stench bomb into the lobby of the theater Saturday night.

The theater, which employs a nonunion operator, has been the scene of several previous stench bombings. Saturday night Mrs. Bradley was in the lobby when the bomb was tossed from a passing automobile. She pursued the other machine in her car, obtaining the license number and a description of the two men in the machine.

Tracing the license number police arrested two men who declined to make a statement. Police say that Mrs. Bradley identified the men, against whom warrants will be sought.

ATTORNEY'S $17,000 LIEN AGAINST MO. PAC. UPHELD

Judge Hartmann Orders Railroad to Pay Charles P. Noell's Claim for Services.

Charles P. Noell's attorney's lien against the Missouri Pacific Railroad, involving about $17,000 in his representation of damage claimants against the railroad before the claimants hired other attorneys, was upheld today by Circuit Judge Hartmann.

The widows of W. S. Hobbs and A. H. Ward of Arkansas, Missouri Pacific engineer and fireman who were killed in a train wreck in 1926, hired Noell to represent them under 40 per cent contracts. After Noell filed suits in St. Louis and retitled the railroad of his attorney's lien, the claimants obtained other lawyers who filed suits in Arkansas. The Arkansas suits were settled for $17,500 apiece.

Judge Hartmann held Noell was entitled to recover 40 per cent of $35,000 from the railroad, plus interest from the date of settlement.

SEDALIA BANKER WHO KILLED SELF LEFT $65,000 ESTATE

SEDALIA, Mo., Dec. 7.—William H. Powell, president of the Citizens' National Bank, who killed himself a month ago, had lost the greater portion of his fortune, once estimated at $500,000, an inventory of his estate filed in Probate Court shows.

The inventory values Powell's estate at approximately $65,000, the greater portion in farm land. Large amounts in securities had been pledged for debts the appraiser states. They report that Powell's 390 shares of Citizens' National Bank stock had been banks in St. Louis and Kansas City for loans. The Citizens' National Bank was placed in receivership following Powell's death.

KILL BANDITS, ADVISES

SMEDLEY BUTLER, HERE

Retired Marine General Discusses Crime in Address at Y. M. H. A. Forum.

"The only thing to do with a bandit is to kill him." Major-General Smedley D. Butler, retired, told an audience of 700 at the Liberal Forum in the Y. M. H. A.
Gymnasium last night. He was talking of the crime problem, as he learned of it in his service as Director of Public Safety in Philadelphia in 1924-25.

The former Marine officer, center of numerous controversies and of one international episode, spoke in a vein of jocosity through most of his address. "You either have to laugh or cry," he said in summarizing his experiences with politicians and leading citizens. In the two years when he was detached from military duty to help a "law and order" administration carry out its promises. Even his serious assertions were framed in broad terms which suggested that they were not meant to be taken too literally. Chief of Police Gerk was an interested listener.

One entirely serious statement came at the end of the address, in reply to a man in the audience who asked if it would not be better to prevent the development of bandits, by improving the surroundings of youth, rather than to kill bandits.

Gen. Butler replied that it would be much better, and he discussed conditions of housing and rearing which he said tended to predispose boys to crime. "But that is the work of other branches of your government," he said. "The policeman isn't hired to educate the next generation. He is hired to protect the lives and property of this generation against bandits who are already developed. And when a man gets the gun habit and the idea of being a bandit, it's too late to do much for him."

Conditions in Philadelphia.

Telling of conditions in Philadelphia, which he said existed to some extent in most other cities, Gen. Butler said:
"The police were governed by regulations, which were made to please chicken-hearted people who have never been robbed themselves.
In arresting a bandit, the policeman was required to tap him on the shoulder and say, 'I am the arm of the law.' While doing that, he would get shot in the stomach.
In other words, so many walls had been placed about the individual, to protect him from the law, that the safety of society had been forgotten."

"In 1923 there had been 4000 holdups in Philadelphia, and nine policemen had been shot, three of them fatally, while no bandit had been ever frightened. For the last six months of the year, no bandit was arrested. If one was caught, he would get out on bail, get continuances, jury disagreements, appeals—if they ran out of courts to appeal to they would create new ones—so that nobody was ever put in jail for anything."

"A police force of an average age of 56 years, on foot, and flat feet at that, was expected to cope with agile young bandits in high-powered cars. The police wore heavy gowns called overcoats, with their revolvers carried inside, where it took an operation to get at them.
They furnished their own weapons and ammunition—I had a fight to get the city to buy them some real guns and put them on the outside where they could get at them. I was called, in newspaper editorials, a butcher, a Cosack and a Uhlán, for putting the police weapons outside, where they could be seen and used."

Hired to Make Streets Safe.

"Well, we went on tapping the bandits on the shoulder, until two young bandits wantedly shot a crippled girl in the head. Then the people screamed for blood, and I saw that the break had come. We found who those two fellows were and sent men out after them. They brought them in, both dead, and a Coroner's jury found that they were killed in resisting arrest."

"When the congregations of 51 churches applauded the action of the police, we started in. I took the view that I was not hired to demonstrate let's see safe. And so long as that little crippled girl was in the hospital, with the newspapers telling every day of her sufferings, the people stood with the police."

"There was a concealed weapons law, but we couldn't search everybody, so the police were told, when they saw a known gunman with a bump that looked like a weapon, to shoot him, and find out afterward whether it was a gun or a banana he was carrying. If he had his hand in his pocket, the rule was the same—this was for known gunmen, mind you."

After the Girl Got Well.

"We brought the holdups down from 12 or 15 a day to one or eight a month. But after that little crippled girl got well, the people got to thinking that I was brutal and unethical, and the newspapers said so. The editors were against me, though the reporters were with me. Nobody higher than a city editor seemed to approve anything I did. Oh, yes, they would say, the city must be made safe, but it should be done in other ways. The fact is, people love bandits. They crowd the movie theaters to admire the silky-haired, silky-mustached young thugs of the screen."

"But we stopped the bandit business in Philadelphia, and it has never come back."

Gen. Butler told of the gambling clean-up which followed the war on bandits, saying that to keep crime below the point where it can be reduced by methods of violence, it is necessary to eliminate gambling and vice.

"He told of the widening of the breach between Mayor Kendrick and himself, and his summary dismissal at the end of 1925, from his $15,000-a-year position. He said his police had been carried on, however, and that when he inspected the Philadelphia police force last summer, he found it modern and efficient. "Bandits haven't a chance now," he said.

"They shoot them down like rabbits." He commended the present Mayor, H. A. Mackey, who, he said, had benefited by practical political experience, and the present Director of Public Safety, who "must be all right, because nobody speaks to him."

$25,431,500 SOUGHT FOR MID-WEST RIVERS

Maj.-Gen. Brown Wants That Part of $60,000,000 Spent on Mississippi System.

Post-Dispatch Bureau, 201-205 Kellogg Building.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—In his annual report to Congress today, Major-General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, recommended that $25,431,500 of the proposed appropriation of $60,000,000 for river and harbor improvement and maintenance during the fiscal year starting next July be spent on the Mississippi River system.

Of the amount recommended for the inland waterway system, Gen.
Brown allotted $19,655,000 for improvements and $5,746,500 for maintenance of existing projects.
He reported that the amount required to complete the authorized projects in the Mississippi system, calculated as of June 30 next year, was $87,955,250.

For the Missouri system, which is included in the Mississippi River calculation, Gen. Brown recommended the expenditure of $6,663,- 000 during the coming fiscal year, of which $4,900,000 would be for improvement and $1,763,000 for maintenance. His full report stated, however, that $5,100,000 could be spent profitably during next year on the Missouri system.

St. Louis-Kansas City Section.
On the stretch between St. Louis and Kansas City work has been considerably speeded up and the six-foot channel is about 90 per cent completed. The total cost of the work during the fiscal year just ended was $11,026,451, of which $9,694,631 was for improvement and $1,331,820 was for maintenance. Brown estimated that a total of $12,500,000 would be required after next June to finish this part of the project. He also recommended the expenditure of $500,000 for improvements and $250,000 for maintenance of the work on the Missouri between Kansas City and Sioux City, and $10,- 000 for maintenance of existing project between Sioux City and Fort Benton. For the Osage River, he recommended the allotment of $3000 for maintenance of existing works.

Brown recommended a total of $4,900,000 for improvement and maintenance of the Illinois River.
He stated that $650,000 could be expended profitably for improvements above Utica, plus $500,000 for maintenance. For the river below Utica he urged the expenditure of $4,000,000 for improvements. These expenditures would almost complete this project.

Ohio Nucleus Large Share.
The Ohio River came in for a large share of the proposed allotment. Brown stated that $4,735,- 000 could be spent profitably for improvements and $1,607,000 for maintenance, a total of $6,342,000.

He estimated that $29,622,400 would still be required for this system at the beginning of the next fiscal year.

The Mississippi River itself was allotted $6,626,500 in Brown's recommendations. The lower part of the river below the mouth of the Ohio was allotted $401,500 for improvements and nothing for improvements. On the portion between the mouth of the Ohio and the mouth of the Illinois, Brown said, $1,700,000 could be profitably spent for improvement and $75,- 000 for maintenance. For the upper river, between the mouth of the Illinois and Minneapolis, he recommended expenditures of $4,- 550,000—$1,700,000 for improvements and $850,000 for maintenance. He estimated that after June 30 next year $19,866,680 would still be required to finish the existing projects on the Mississippi River proper.

DENTAL SOCIETY CELEBRATING ITS 75TH ANNIVERSARY

Visitors Are Expected to Attend Three-Day Meeting.

Commemorating the founding of St. Louis Dental Society by a group of 16 men in 1856, dentists began today a three-day meeting at Hotel Jefferson which nearly 2000 are expected to attend. The organization celebrating its seventy-fifth anniversary has 800 members and many are expected from other cities to hear the talks which are to be made by leaders of the profession.

A feature of the meeting is a collection of historic and scientific exhibits. The equipment used in early dental practice has been gathered for exhibition with the latest improved devices.

Dr. Charles H. Mayo, Rochester, Minn., will speak tonight on "Dentistry's Place in the Sun." Dr. Bernard Wolf Weinberger of the College of Dentistry, New York University, will trace the history of dentistry and Dr. C. M. Johnson of Chicago, editor of the American Dental Journal, will undertake to predict its future.

How to Use a Toothbrush.
Speaking today on dental hygiene, Dr. Paul E. Stillman of New York University said it was more than simply cleanliness, and gave some advice on how a toothbrush should be used.

In advising patients how to use the brush, he said, it is to be assumed that whatever they know about a toothbrush is wrong. "As a fundamental thought," he said, "the brush is never to be used with the sole purpose of cleaning teeth."

"It should be thought of and used as a implement of physical culture. For instance, attempt to think of it as related to the purpose for which it is to be used—as we think of a tennis racket, the clubs of the gymnasium, or the golf clubs."

Correct use of the toothbrush, Dr. Stillman said, should stimulate a reaction nearly identical with that due to the act of mastication, a speeding up of the circulation of blood. This is to be accomplished, he said, by gently massaging the gums with the bristles, held at the same angle to the gums as a broom is in sweeping.

Our Law of Hygiene.
"There is but one law of hygiene for the human body," Dr. Stillman said. "Not one for the teeth, for the exclusive use of dentists, and another for the body, under which physicians may work. Every school boy realizes this is true. Try to convince a school boy or a trainer of men or of horses that cleanliness is the most important element in health."

"The cleaning of teeth has an important place in dental hygiene, but equal in importance only to the place occupied in general hygiene by the bath. Let us consider the people who are confined to bed through illness and are patients in a hospital. They are bathed regularly and are probably the cleanest group of people in the average community."

Germicides and antiseptics, Dr. Stillman added, are ineffective in controlling infections in the mouth, except in acute Vincent's infection. Dr. Weston A. Price of Cleveland, O., chairman of the research section of the American Dental Association for the past 16 years, told of his studies of the relation between diet and decay of teeth, and predicted that dental practice can be developed to a great extent from replacement and repair, to the prevention of decay and pyorrhea.

When it was discovered that all pathologic tissues harbored microorganisms, Dr. Price said, it was assumed that those organisms were the cause of the infection.

Disease and the Seasons.
"The new view," he said, "provides that these invasions are secondary to a break in the defense of the tissues involved. Localized lowering of defense is now appreciated to be directly related to an inadequate supply of certain structural elements in the tissues and fluids bathing them, due in considerable part to an inadequate intake of certain activating substances which should be available in food. Some of these activating substances are the known vitamins, others are believed to be present, but as yet little understood."

Many diseases, including dental decay, are more common, Dr. Price said, at certain seasons of the year, chiefly winter and spring. He studied dairy products seeking factors of nutrition which have a closer relation to mortality and morbidity levels for different months of the year than do the sunshine factors, and discovered the presence of cycles which he said, appear to have a very direct relation to morbidity and mortality statistics.

"These data," he said, "revealed that in those districts where mortality rates are increasing for heart disease and pneumonia and where dental decay is increasing, the activating substances are relatively lower than in districts where these afflictions are not so severe."

Vitamins Vary in Milk.
"An effort has been made to accumulate these substances and to utilize them for the control and prevention of dental decay. Carefully accumulated data indicate that dental decay has been reduced in the experimental groups over 20 per cent, and that the same treatment, while controlling dental decay, has greatly improved the general physical well-being."

In a radio talk Dr. Price said his research had shown milk was low in vitamins in certain parts of the country from December to April, and had the highest vitamin content from June to October.

"Drink the milk even though it is poor in vitamins," he said, "for the sake of the other chemicals, but the body must have the spark that comes from the activators or vitamins. There are three things you can do. Put in storage some of the butter when the vitamins are high. Another is to have butter-sent from a part of the country where it is high in vitamin content and third, use a substitute. One source of these vitamins is cod-liver oil, but if this is used I advise it in very small quantities and to be taken in capsule form, not over one-half teaspoonful with each meal."

Dr. Frank A. Delabarre of Boston and Dr. R. C. Willett of Peoria, Ill., were on the afternoon program for talks on the care of teeth of children and dental health work in public schools.

"I'll be fair with you..

"I LIKE the way you put it up to us smokers to judge your cigarette by absolutely real things like mildness and better taste. Sounds like good common sense!"

Fair enough! That's all Chesterfield wants. That's all Chesterfield could ask for and does ask for—a trial.

"Promises fill no sack." After all, it's what you get out of a spoke that counts. And what you get out of Chesterfield, or anything else for that matter, depends on what goes in.

Better tobaccos don't grow than the tobaccos that go into Chesterfield. Ripe. Sweet. Aged and cured for two years under the watchful care of expert chemists.

Better cigarette paper can't be bought. Tasteless. Odorless. Pure!

Sanitary factories. Cleanliness in every step of the process. A purer cigarette than Chesterfield can't be made.

CHICAGO TEACHERS WANT MORE PAY, FIVE-HOUR DAY

They Haven't Received Cash But Once Since Spring at Old Rate.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—More pay, fewer pupils to instruct, and a five-hour day, are among demands in a program formulated by union teachers of Chicago. No overtime was also included in the demands which were published in the initial issue of the "Chicago Union Teacher," a monthly publication now being circulated.

Chicago teachers have received but one month's pay in cash since last spring because of a shortage of money due to a tax muddle.

SOVIET LAGS IN 1931 INDUSTRIAL PROGRAM

Communist Organ Says Basic Cause Is Poor Transportation Service.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, Dec. 7.—The Communist newspaper Pravda admits that Soviet Russia has failed to fulfill its 1931 program under the five-year plan in certain branches of industry, but predicts the entire plan will be more than fulfilled in four years, or by the end of 1932.

Industrial production for the first 10 months of 1931 was only 19.4 per cent over that of 1930, the newspaper says in a leading editorial, whereas the plan called for a 45 per cent increase for the whole year in comparison with last.

Causes for the failure are analyzed in the Communist organ, which calls upon the proletariat to mobilize for the work and for the new five-year plan which begins in 1932.

"In 1931," it says, "industry had to work under difficult conditions and one of the fundamental causes of underfulfilling the plan was the blow dealt last winter by the lagging railway transport. The party now is devoting extraordinary attention to the bad work in transport to remove the slightest possibility of a repetition of these difficulties which were created for industry as a whole."

Causes of Delay.
No less important reasons for lagging industry are found by the newspaper to be incapacity of a majority of executives to co-ordinate work with new conditions which changed the economic and political aspects of the country; inadequate use of the cost-accounting system, which caused enormous damage to mechanical equipment because of incompetent operatives, and the widespread practice of equal wages for all workers.

All these factors were mentioned by Josef Stalin in his speech last June as causes for the lagging of industry, and the editorial points out that "in those branches of economy where Stalin's six conditions were put into effect great changes have occurred for the better."

"But in the problem of quantity production," it continues, "we are below the plan and below the possibilities, although the tempo is increasing, as evidenced by October production, which increased 23.4 per cent in comparison with October of last year."

Mastering of Technique.
"Our success in mastering technique" is hailed as the most important result of 1931. Pravda adds that organization and production of new machinery and equipment are making us more and more independent of foreign imports.

"Reconstruction of industry on the basis of Stalin's six conditions, a change in the work of the fuel industry, improvement of railway transport and development of Soviet trade with the aim to improve material conditions of the worker class all create favorable conditions for the industrial plan next year in such a manner that the five-year plan will be overfulfilled in four years," the newspaper adds.

"Like true bolsheviks, we must expose defects in the work of industry and with all our means adopt Stalin's six conditions to guarantee mobilization of all inner resources."

The occasion for the editorial was the calling of the regular all-union conference of the Communist party to meet on Jan. 30 to discuss the second five-year plan.

TEXAS SHERIFF KILLS EX-RANGER IN ROW

Officer Uses Sub Machine Gun —Opponent Famed for Quick Draw.

By the Associated Press.
RANKIN, Tex., Dec. 7.—Graham Barnett, 41 years old, a former Texas Ranger noted for his speed on the draw, was killed by Sheriff W. C. Fowler of Upton County with a submachine gun yesterday.

The sheriff, who poured a stream of shots at the automobile of the victim from a window of his own machine, intimidated a dispute over a financial matter led to the shooting.

Barnett fell dead without firing any of the four weapons, including a .45-caliber automatic pistol, with which he was armed. He had been a Deputy Sheriff, Town Marshal and special officer as well as a Ranger.

"I had to do it," Sheriff Fowler said. "It was either he or me. He made a move for a gun."

Sheriff Fowler was charged with murder and released under $10,000 bond. The El Paso Times quoted the Sheriff as saying Barnett, who lived in Alpine, Tex., had sought to obtain a loan from him Friday.

"I declined to advance Barnett the money he requested," Fowler said, "and he became angry."

The shooting occurred on the main street of this little village. Barnett's car was parked at a filling station. Barnett's friends said the Sheriff stopped his car about 20 paces away.

Tony Hess, one of Barnett's companions, said the Sheriff called to him to "stand aside." Sheriff Fowler then "lowered a window, thrust out the muzzle of the machine gun and began shooting. Hess said.

Barnett, who is survived by his widow and five children, made a reputation as a marksman in his youth. At 18 he killed Will Rabb in Langtry, Tex. He was tried and acquitted, as he was also in the death of "Noley" Watson in 1925 in Reagan County.

'BILL' HART PLANS COMEBACK

At Age of 61, Wild West Movie Actor Considers "Talkies."

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 6.—William S. Hart, who retired from the movies five years ago, was 61 years old today. He is reported to be considering a comeback in the talking films.

Hart was long popular as the hero of Wild West films.

Marchioness de Pombal Dies.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 7.—The Marchioness de Pombal died here yesterday. She was the mother of the present Marquis who is a descendant of the famous Marquis de Pombal, Portuguese statesman who reconstructed Lisbon after the earthquake of 1755. She was a lady-in-waiting to former Queen Amelie.

Clarence H. Howard Dies, Funeral Here on Thursday

me a lot of money to learn that. I'll tell you about it if you'll pay me, but no pay no information." Howard, then earning less than $25 a month, had to go without the information. But he resolved that, when he should become an employer, he would provide free technical training for ambitious employees. He carried out this plan in later years at the Commonwealth plant in Granite City.

The third incident taught Howard the practical application of the Golden Rule. After coming to St. Louis as a pupil in the old Manual Training School of Washington University, Howard ran out of funds. He went to H. M. Hoxie, vice president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, and asked him for a job of night work, in which he could continue his studies. Hoxie instead gave him a check for $350. "That's too much," the young man said. "I can't pay it back." "Don't pay it back," Hoxie replied; "pass it along—help some other young man when you are able."

He finished Manual Training School when he was 22, with the honors of his class. The Missouri Pacific took him on as a shop foreman. Soon afterward he became superintendent of a car and foundry plant in Indiana, which was removed to a location near Kansas City, next was in St. Louis as transportation manager for a manufacturing firm; then he was general manager of the St. Charles Car

Co. plant at St. Charles. The Safety Car Heating and Lighting Co. of New York made him manager of its New York office in St. Louis. In 1899 he became vice president of the Shickel, Harrison & Howard Steel Co., later Leighton & Howard Steel Co.

This company was absorbed in 1902 by the American Foundries Co., and in 1904 Mr. Howard obtained a controlling interest in the Commonwealth Steel Co. and became its president.

Under Mr. Howard's direction the Commonwealth plant, at Granite City, Ill., became one of the largest industries of the Tri-Cities in the East Side industrial district. He kept his home and his civic interests in St. Louis, and in 1907 he bought the historic mansion at Belmont and Chamberlain avenues, then known as Maplecrest, and once the William T. Gay mansion of slavery days, when it was the center of a 100-acre estate. Louis Chauvenet was the owner from whom Mr. Howard bought it.

He acquired other realty in the neighborhood and took practical measures, in the days before zoning legislation, to keep up the high residential quality of the section. In the same neighborhood he fostered the growth of The Principia school for the children of Christian Scientists. He had a large part in building and maintaining Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist, adjoining the school on Page boulevard.

In recent years he financed the obtaining of land in St. Louis County as a new site for the school. In 1930, the trustees changed the plans for the school's future, and purchased a 1300-acre site on Piasa Bluffs, overlooking the Mississippi north of Alton and near Elsie, Ill. The four-year college of The Principia is now being built there, the preparatory grades remaining in St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Howard, both trustees, gave $200,000 for the purchase of land and facilities for the new college.

A Christian Scientist since 1900, Mr. Howard was a frequent visitor to Mother Church headquarters in Boston.

He removed his home, in 1920, to 8900 Lackland road, in Overland.

Employees' Training School. In 1906, the employees' training school planned by Mr. Howard was instituted by the Commonwealth Steel Co. The Commonwealth School developed into an institution of high school grade, co-ordinated with the local and state school system, and furnishing free tuition, with use of a large library. The building was also the clubhouse of the employees' Fellowship Club, the principal classroom being convertible into an auditorium. Gymnasium, lunch room and reading room were included in the club facilities.

New employees received copies of a booklet on "Team Work," with an introduction which read: "Our motto is the Golden Rule—which means 'a square deal all around.' We are all entitled to a just wage, good healthful working conditions, and a friendly man-to-man relation which carries with it the duty of efficient, faithful and loyal service."

The "Commonwealth plan," to which wide publicity was given, did not at all times keep the company free from labor troubles. In the summer of 1923 a strike of holders and pattern makers occurred, which was caused, according to the company officers, by a demand that it abandon the open-shop principle and employ only union men. The strikers said they had asked not for the closed shop, but for the right of unions to take up grievances with the company officers, outside of the "Commonwealth plan," which, the strikers said, they had found by experience to be ineffective. The concessions sought by the strikers were not obtained.

Because of the strike, the St. Louis Central Trades and Labor Union went on record, early in 1924, as condemning the appointment of Mr. Howard, by Gov. Hyde, to fill a vacancy on the St. Louis Police Board.

Refused Order for Shrapnel. In the fall of 1914, when war orders from the Allied nations began to enrich American steel and chemical manufacturers, Mr. Howard announced the rejection of a $2,000,000 order for shrapnel, which was offered to the Commonwealth.

Business associates argued with him, saying that the war orders would help to keep American workers employed, that the munitions were for use not in aggressive warfare, but in defending France and Belgium against invasion, and that a speedy conclusion of the war would save many lives.

"Would it be a laudable thing," Mr. Howard asked in reply, "to make $2 million and send it abroad so that men might murder each other with it? I shall not permit my company to manufacture a dollar's worth of steel to be used for the destruction of human life. The war is a shame to Christendom. As a Christian, I cannot believe in anything that abets war."

He was able, through his control of a majority of the company's stock, to enforce his policy, in which some of the minority stockholders did not concur.

Not until after this sale did anyone come forward to oppose the generally accepted view, that the war, Mr. Howard joined in the Liberty bond campaign and other war activities. "Our President," he said, "has put the war on so high a plane that everyone can vigorously and conscientiously support it. The war, owing to President Wilson's clear statement of our aims, has become a distinct issue between light and darkness, between democracy and autocracy. The admonition to 'love your enemies' can be obeyed, for we are helping to free our so-called enemies from the bondage which also menaces ourselves."

Prosperity attended the operations of the Commonwealth Steel Co., which grew until, in the spring of 1929, it was producing steel at the rate of 100,000 tons a year, and was capitalized at $9,900,000. In April, 1929, the sale of the Commonwealth to the General Steel Castings Corporation, for approximately $35,000,000, was announced.

Inventor Howe's Claim. Not until after this sale did anyone come forward to oppose the generally accepted view, that the Commonwealth's prosperity was due entirely to the brains and energy of Mr. Howard and his chief associates. Andrew Frank Howe, an inventor, put forward the claim that he had made possible a large part of the company's profits, through a steel mold device for the making of very large castings. This device, Howe said, had given the Commonwealth, for a considerable time, a monopoly in this branch of manufacture. By his method, Howe said, the company made locomotive and railroad car beds with greater accuracy than had been possible before, and most of the large railroads had become its customers. He sued for a share in the profits of the company, and

KENTUCKY MINERS IN NEED OF HELP, GOVERNOR IS TOLD

Executive's Investigator Describe Conditions in Harlan County Where State Troops Were Sent.

The Associated Press. FRANKFORT, Ky., Dec. 7.—Many persons in the Harlan County coal fields are in need of relief, Gov. Flem D. Campbell is informed, in a voluminous report submitted to him by A. A. Babbitt of Lexington, and J. Smith Hays of Winchester, whom he designated last month as a special committee to investigate conditions in Harlan County.

The report contained a 65-page synopsis of testimony from miners, officials, coal operators and others, in addition to a 24-page summary and nine volumes of testimony. It details conditions generally in the Southeastern Kentucky coal fields where State troops were sent last summer following the killing of four men.

"Witnesses testified before us that the Red Cross had refused aid to the hungry miners and their families, and we hear from other reliable sources that the Red Cross would not aid persons in any way involved in the labor trouble," the report said.

"We were surprised to learn that an organization with the Red Cross on its banner, the emblem of the crucifixion and blood of Christ, would turn a deaf ear or refuse to aid needy men, women and children. To collect funds and distribute necessary relief, the service of an organization like the Red Cross is needed. We hope our information concerning its refusal to act in such an emergency has been misleading and that it will now, at the beginning of winter, take up its work and lead in the relief of the innocent in Harlan County. Many are in real need, are destitute."

The report blamed the National Miners' Union for the labor trouble in the coal fields.

Federal Judge FitzHenry, who heard the case in Springfield, Ill., upheld his claim, and named the master in chancery to determine the amount due to the inventor. The defense appealed the case, which is pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Howard was made chairman of the board of the General Steel Castings Co., and resigned that position in April, 1930.

Mr. Howard was president of the Business Men's League for the year 1916. The league became the Chamber of Commerce in his term, and had a large membership of business men, owners of houses, wholesale houses. Mr. Howard was instrumental in obtaining the loss of the Francis residence at Maryland and Newstead avenues, owned by former Gov. David R. Francis, and Ambassador to Russia, and this building was used by the junior organization for several years.

Interested for years in the Boy Scouts, Mr. Howard made several large donations to the organization and bought an 80-acre tract near Brenton, Mo., as a camp site for the Scouts of Greater St. Louis. He gave largely in the last two years to the Cub Scouts, his latest gift being $10,000 a few days ago.

He was foreman of the local grand jury which, in 1919, returned indictments for the theft of referendum petitions affecting the United Railways Co., two officers of the company being indicted. Lawrence McDaniel, circuit attorney at the time, later obtained the indictments of 132 of the 144 grand jurors who had served during his term. In his campaign for re-election, Mr. McDaniel was defeated by Mr. Howard. "I wouldn't indict me," McDaniel said afterward, "because he said I deserved too much in the grand jury room."

On the Police Board. Mr. Howard's term of less than a year on the Police Board—he was appointed late in Gov. Hyde's term after the removal of Victor J. Miller—was marked by a lively interest in police policies, which he endeavored to reshape on a Goldstein basis.

When the Coroner and the Chief of Police exonerated city detectives who shot and killed a driver fleeing from the scene of an auto mobile accident, Mr. Howard reopened the case and conducted a personal inquiry, formally questioning the detectives and witnesses. He clashed with other members of the board on this case, and on questions of promotion.

Mr. Howard was one of the few business men in St. Louis who openly avowed belief in prohibition. He was for several years member of the executive, or headquarters, committee of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, and was a contributor to the League, and a backer of the recent three-day rally here.

This user of large molds was himself cast in a large mold physically. An animated and friendly expression did much to relieve the stiffness of his features.

"We were surprised to learn that an organization with the Red Cross on its banner, the emblem of the crucifixion and blood of Christ, could turn a deaf ear or refuse to aid needy men, women and children. To collect funds and distribute necessary relief, the service of an organization like the Red Cross is needed. We hope our information concerning its refusal to act in such an emergency has been misleading and that it will now, at the beginning of winter, take up its work and lead in the relief so necessary for the guilty and the innocent in Harlan County. Many are in real need, are destitute."

The report blamed the National Miners' Union for the labor trouble in the coal fields.

Federal Judge FitzHenry, who heard the case in Springfield, Ill., voided his claim, and named a master in chancery to determine the amount due to the inventor. The defense appealed the case, which is pending in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mr. Howard was made chairman of the board of the General Steel Castings Co., and resigned that position in April, 1930.

Mr. Howard was president of the Business Men's League for the year 1928. The league became the Chamber of Commerce in his term. He qualified, at the beginning of the year, a comprehensive program for development of activities. One committee was to aid in the formation of a Junior Chamber of Commerce, and this was instituted and had a large membership of young men, employees of banks and wholesale houses. Mr. Howard was instrumental in obtaining the loan of the Francis residence at Maryland and Newstead avenues, owned by former Gov. David R. Francis, then Ambassador to Russia, and the building was used by the junior organization for several years.

Interested for years in the Boy Scouts, Mr. Howard made several large donations to the organization, and bought an 80-acre tract near Preston, Mo., as a camp site primarily for the Scouts of Granite City and the adjoining industrial towns. He gave largely in the last two years to the Cub Scouts, his latest gift being $10,000 a few days ago.

He was foreman of the local grand jury which, in 1919, returned indictments for the theft of referendum petitions affecting the United Railways Co., two officers of the company being indicted. Lawrence McDaniel, Circuit Attorney at the time, later obtained the indorsements of 142 of the 144 grand jurors who had served during his term. In his campaign for re-election, the 144th man, who would not sign, was Mr. Howard. "He wouldn't indorse me," McDaniel said afterward, "because he said I owed too much in the grand jury room."

On the Police Board.
Mr. Howard's term of less than a year on the Police Board—he was appointed late in Gov. Hyde's term after the removal of Victor J. Miller—was marked by a lively interest in police policies, which he endeavored to reshape on a Golden Rule basis.

When the coroner and the chief of police exonerated city detective who shot and killed a driver coming from the scene of an automobile accident, Mr. Howard reopened the case and conducted a personal inquiry, formally questioning the detectives and witnesses. He cashed with other members of the board on this case, and on questions of promotion.

Mr. Howard was one of the few business men in St. Louis who openly avowed belief in prohibition. He was for several years a member of the executive, or headquarters, committee of the Missouri Anti-Saloon League, and was a contributor to the League, and a member of the recent three-day dry tour here.

The user of large molds was himself cast in a large mold physically. An animated and friendly personality did much to relieve the business of his features.

MRS. EUPHRASIA C. EASTON, MEMBER OF OLD FAMILY, DIES
Daughter-in-law of First Postmaster of St. Louis Succumbs at 92 at St. Charles.

Mrs. Euphrasia Caroline Easton, daughter-in-law of Rufus Easton, first Postmaster of St. Louis, died of the infirmities of age at her home, 405 Jefferson street, St. Charles, last midnight. She was 92 years old.

Mrs. Easton was the widow of Col. Henry C. Easton, who died 27 years ago and a sister-in-law of Alton Easton for whom Alton, Ill., was named. Her maternal grandfather, Pierre Le Fevre, was with Louis Blanchette when Blanchette founded St. Charles in the latter part of the eighteenth century. Her father, Francis Yost, was chairman of a civic committee in St. Louis which floated a bond issue for construction of the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Peter's Catholic Church in St.

Charles, with burial in the St. Charles Borromeo Cemetery here. Surviving are a sister, Mrs. John A. Keller; two stepsons, Maj. John Easton of the United States Army, and Henry Easton of Jefferson City, and a niece, Mrs. H. T. Poin-dexter of Kansas City.

SAYS DR. SUN USED TRICK TO PROTECT HIM IN CHINA
Biographer Declares Founder of Republic Got Fake Birth Certificate in Hawaii.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 7.—Evidence that Dr. Sun Yat-sen, father of the Chinese Republic, was born in China rather than Hawaii is presented in a new biography by Henry Bond Restarick, former Episcopal Bishop of Honolulu, published by the Yale University Press. Bishop Restarick contends that Sun fraudulently obtained a birth certificate in Hawaii as protection against Chinese opposition to his revolutionary activities. "It was a war measure," he commented. Sun actually was born in the province of Kwangtung, China, Nov. 2, 1866, according to the Bishop's computation. In a foreword he says his material was collected from relatives and friends of Sun, who would not talk while the "George Washington of China" was alive.

WOMAN KILLED IN ATTEMPT
Shot by Proprietor After She Fires at Him at Sacramento, Cal.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Mary Hicks, 22 years old, Pasco, Wash., died last night of a wound received when she attempted to hold up a service station near here Thursday. She was shot by W. J. Hasley, service station proprietor, after she had fired at Hasley. Bonnie Leg-gion is held as her accomplice. Police said he admitted his part in the attempted holdup.

Parched or toasted? No, sir! CAMELS are FRESH!

THE bedrock of Camel popularity is the inherently fine quality of the tobaccos that go into our cigarette.

These tobaccos are notably mild, full-mellow, delicately flavored by nature — the finest Turkish and mild, sun-ripened Domestic tobaccos that money can buy.

To safeguard the essential goodness of these fine tobaccos we exercise every care to conserve their natural moisture and natural flavors.

They are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say Camels are made fresh to start with—and why the Camel Humidor Pack can bring them fresh to you, in prime smoking condition.

If you want to know what a blessing that means in unalloyed smoke-enjoyment, switch to Camels for just one day — then leave them—if you can.

FALSE TEETH
Annoy or Bother You?

Fasteeth, a new, greatly improved powder, to be sprinkled on upper and lower plates, holds false teeth firm, securely and comfortably. No gummy, pasty taste or feeling. Makes breath sweet and pleasant. Deodorizes. Get Fasteeth at Walgreen or any other good druggist.

MUSCULAR-RHEUMATIC PAINS

DRAW them out with a "counter-irritant." Muscular lumbago, soreness and stiffness—generally respond to good old Musterole. Doctors call it a "counter-irritant" because its warming action penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. It gets action and is not just a salve. But do not stop with one application. Apply this soothing, cooling, healing ointment generously to the affected area once every hour for five hours. Used by millions for over 20 years. Recommended by many doctors and nurses. All druggists.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

COLDS GO

"Yesterday I did not think I'd be here"

"But I followed your suggestion... took a few Bromo Quinine tablets... and my cold vanished overnight. Bromo Quinine is one known dependable remedy for colds. It destroys the infection and expels it quickly from the system... proved safe and effective for more than two generations, and successfully used by untold millions all over the civilized world."

People "put up with" colds unnecessarily because they have become discouraged trying to remove nasal infection by treating the outward symptoms.

REPRIEVED YOUTH

RUSSELL McWILLIAMS.

17-YEAR-OLD SLAYER GETS 30-DAY REPRIEVE

Gov. Emmerson Acts "Solely to Permit Case to Be Taken to Supreme Court."

By the Associated Press. SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Dec. 7.—Russell McWilliams, 17-year-old Rockford youth, sentenced to die in the electric chair for killing a street car conductor during a hold-up, was granted a 30-day reprieve by Gov. L. Emmerson today. In announcing his decision, Gov. Emmerson said that the action was "solely to permit McWilliams' attorney to take the case to the Supreme Court." The youth is represented by Attorney B. J. Knight. McWilliams was sentenced to die on Friday, Dec. 11. The State Pardon and Parole Board has already reviewed the conviction and recommended to the Governor that it stand. On advice of the board the Governor refused to commute the sentence.

Mother Living at Guard's Home to Be Near Her Son.

By the Associated Press. JOLIET, Ill., Dec. 7.—The mother of 17-year-old Russell McWilliams, who is to die in the electric chair Friday for killing a Rockford (Ill.) street car conductor, has almost moved into the State Penitentiary here to be near him the last few days of his life.

From the home of E. I. Lea, a guard, she makes frequent visits to the solitary cell where the boy is awaiting execution.

As welfare workers and sympathetic friends continued their efforts in his behalf, McWilliams declared today he still held hope the Governor, who has granted him a stay of execution, will commute his sentence to life imprisonment.

"Wouldn't it be great," he said, "if the Governor did commute my sentence? I hope Christmas will help him decide to act in my favor."

He spends hours reading a Bible given him by a Rockford woman after his conviction for the slaying, which occurred during a hold-up, the sixth undertaken by the boy with a companion to "get easy money."

"The Bible makes me less afraid of what is to come," he said.

FORMER JUDGE G. F. LONGAN DIES SUDDENLY AT SEDALIA

Member of One of Oldest Families in Central Missouri; Recently Elected by Bar.

By the Associated Press.
SEDALIA, Mo., Dec. 7.—George F. Longan, 75 years old, former Judge of the Thirtieth Judicial District, Pettis County, fell dead in the bathroom of his home this morning while preparing for breakfast.

Judge Longan, a member of one of the oldest families in Central Missouri, a few days ago was elected president emeritus of the Sedalia Bar Association, of which he was a member nearly 50 years. His father, John B. Longan, born in Cooper County, died here in 1921 at the age of 95.

He was born on a farm near Houstonia, Oct. 23, 1856. In 1881-1882 he was city attorney of Sedalia and in the latter year was elected to the Missouri Legislature. He was elected in 1883 as prosecuting attorney and served two terms. In 1895 he was appointed Circuit Judge by Gov. William J. Stone. Later he was twice elected to the bench. In 1887 he married Lou Eva Walker. She and three daughters, Mrs. Roy A. Hauer of New Rochelle, N. Y., a former opera singer; Mrs. Thurman W. Arnold of New Haven Conn., and Lou Eva Longan, superintendent of the Chicago orphanage, formerly the Jane Addams Hull House, survive.

Judge Longan was attorney for the City Light & Traction Co.

STUNT FLYER HURT IN CRASH

By the Associated Press.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 7.—While his bride of three weeks stood among spectators, Samuel Hopkins, 20 years old, New York airplane pilot, crashed from 1000 feet near Goleta airport, eight miles north of here, late yesterday and was injured seriously. The cause of the accident was not ascertained.

Hopkins and other pilots were stunting on an air program starting an air passenger service. Another pilot, Gordon Sackett, followed Hopkins' plane to the ground and pulled him from the wreckage. Hopkins was married recently in Vancouver, B. C.

TIME TO RESUME FIGHT, SAY GANDHI FORGES IN BENGAL

Council of All-India Moslem League Displeased Lack of Action on Communal Problem.

By the Associated Press. BENGAL, Dec. 7.—The renewal of the passive resistance campaign against the British Government is foreshadowed by a resolution adopted by the Bengal Provincial Conference, the National Congress last night declaring the time had come to resume the campaign and the boycott of foreign cloth, British goods, banks, insurance companies and shipping lines.

Subhas Chandra Bose, former Mayor of Calcutta, told the Provincial Congress today that no action in Bengal was yet ready, renewing the civil disobedience campaign but that he thought proposed program of passive resistance would prepare the ground for a within a few months. He made his statement in reply to complaints that yesterday's resolution, calling for passive resistance, contained "no fighting program."

The delegates refused to adopt a resolution intended to start a rural campaign in Bengal against rents and taxes.

By the Associated Press. LUCKNOW, India, Dec. 7.—The district committee of the Congress of the United Provinces has been authorized by an agrarian subcommittee to begin a non-campaign immediately. The committee is headed by Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Following the action, which taken yesterday, Nehru left for district of Rae Bareilly and other members of the subcommittee went to Bara Banki to hold other meetings. The district committee are at Rae Bareilly, Etah, Cawnpore and Unao.

By the Associated Press. NEW DELHI, India, Dec. 7.—The Council of the All-India Muslim League is on record as expressing dissatisfaction with failure of the British Government to announce a decision on the safeguarding of Moslem rights in India. The action was taken at a meeting yesterday.

Gandhi in Geneva as Guest of Biographer.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Dec. 7.—Mahatma Gandhi arrived from Paris tonight to be the guest of Ronald Rolland, his biographer, until day, at Villeneuve on Lake Geneva. On the train journey crowds gathered around the windows of third-class compartment at station and some succeeded in shaking hands with him. At the same he took the hand of a woman who had been held up to him the mother.

Before entering on his day of silence, he said he hoped to recuperate here from the fat of his labors in London. He spent one day in Rome before sailing from Brindisi on Dec. 14. He was anxious to deny a report that he had said Indian people would not be lenient if they lost patience. He expressed the hope his people would form no hasty conclusions before he returned, but he awaited a statement he planned to make on landing at Bombay on Dec. 23.

MEXICAN UNIONS DEMAND

Call on State to Care for the unemployed.

By the Associated Press. MEXICO CITY, Dec. 7.—Reformers from Jalapa, capital of the State of Vera Cruz today say labor unions demand that the Government care of unemployed workmen. These unions contend it is the State's obligation to provide residents with food, clothing and other necessities so long as they cannot find work.

Grandi Lands at Palermo. PALERMO, Sicily, Dec. 7.—Prime Minister Grandi had one day of leisure when he and Mrs. Grandi came ashore from the steamer Augustus at this Sicilian resort today. They were greeted by the Mayor, who had promised to be no formal reception, when they stepped off the train. There were the same cheering crowds which had greeted them during their visit to the United States.

A Criticism of Wet Financing.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE Allied Campaigners for Prohibition have come and gone. They ably represented their cause. The space given in your paper to what they said is appreciated.

These campaigners are underwritten by no millionaires, I have been reliably informed. They believe that the cause they represent is the people's, and that the people should support it. So far, the contributions of the people have sustained them in making one of the most unique and marvelous campaigns in the history of our country.

The campaign of propaganda being put out by wet contrasts sharply with that of the drys so far as the source of the money supply is concerned. Dr. G. E. Raynor, politician of the Alexander Hamilton High School, New York, declared in an address the other day that seven men "contribute 75 per cent of the millions raised for wet propaganda." Dr. Raynor added: "That seven millionaires can buy out the United States Constitution will have been proved if prohibition fails."

A recent letter from the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, addressed to moneyed men, suggested that millions could be saved in taxes by taxing beer and light wines. We ask, is the goal of these millionaires, prompted by the desire to roll their tax burdens onto the appetite-ridden portion of our population? It certainly does look that way.

Meanwhile the people will pay for the defense of prohibition, for it is their law, and if the eighteenth amendment is ever taken out of the constitution, they will do it—not the millionaires. W. G. J.

In a Nutshell.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

OUR depression is home-made, and it is due fundamentally to the maldistribution of wealth—to a system which, for example, permitted 644 persons in 1929 to have an income equal to that received by more than 2,000,000 families for the entire wheat and cotton crops of the nation. This maldistribution, accelerated in the last 10 years by the machine, has now reached a point where the "purchasing power" of the mass is greatly diminished and the units of the machine are becoming too much junk. If purchasing power is to be restored, there must be a more equitable distribution of the benefits of the machine. Human greed is at the bottom of our troubles, and human greed must curb itself or submit to being curbed. ECONOMIST.

Jazz on the Radio.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

APPARENTLY those of your contributors who protest against radio jazz recognize that it is illogical to compare music in the severe classical tradition with jazz, a loose romantic form. They confine themselves, therefore, to the expression of personal prejudice against jazz (to which, of course, they have every right). But, instead of making a simple statement of preference, they uniformly resort to invective and heaping the question, and as a result their statements, if synthesized into one composite quibble, might be written, "All radio jazz is unacceptably bad."

Perhaps some of these gentlemen will admit that they are not justified in denigrating all music that "symphonizes" compositions as "When Day Is Done" and "Rhapsody in Blue," even if they conceive a dislike for the majority of the compositions now in vogue. Moreover, these latter, which are of the soothing and gently rhythmic variety, are surely no more damnable as light music than the Victorian pulsations of Strauss and Herber. In addition, I believe that I am not far from wrong in stating that at least half the dance orchestras on the air play excellently, and that a few, such as those of Paul Whiteman and of Wayne King, have a quality which should, in the very least, not prove obnoxious to any but the extreme right wing of the classicalists.

In parting, I suggest that these correspondents restrict their outcries to the honest statement: "In spite of the fact that there is good jazz on the air, I prefer classical music. Kindly add my protest against radio jazz to the other seven or eight." H. C. B.

HITLER AS DICTATOR?

Incredible as it may have seemed even a year ago, Adolf Hitler, leader of the Nazis, seems on the verge of capturing control of the German Government. His strength, both in the Reichstag and in the country at large, has increased steadily until he now claims the support of 7,000,000 German citizens. It would not be surprising if, almost any day, Hitler should duplicate at Berlin the famous march upon Rome made by Mussolini and his Fascist some 10 years ago. While the present German Government, headed by Chancellor Brüning, could undoubtedly forestall a Hitler coup, at least for a time, it is reported to be unwilling to resort to force of arms to do so. The Nazi leader denies any intention to seize control by a coup d'état, saying that his success will come by election of members to the Reichstag.

Hitler's reassurance, in an interview with the Associated Press, that American bondholders need have no fear for their holdings if he should assume power, unless the French viewpoint on reparations should be accepted by all the other interested nations, is regarded as significant. Undoubtedly, the concession was made in an effort to reconcile public opinion in this country. On the basis of Hitler's own words and performance, American opinion of him is that he is a fantastic and irresponsible agitator who, by dint of a magnetic personality and a magnificent gift of rabble-raising oratory, has attained a dubious prominence.

How would Dictator Hitler compare with Agitator Hitler? We dare say the former would be a very different person. It is one thing for Hitler to promise that he would smash the treaties which hold Germany in economic bondage, that he would seize the Polish Corridor, that he would renounce Germany's debts, that he would disfranchise the Jews, and another thing to convert those promises into reality. Germany has no army or navy to speak of, nor has it money or credits to finance Hitler's flamboyant projects. Hence Hitler in power would be forced, like many another man who has found actual responsibility in office to be a sobering influence, to tone down his views.

Germany is in a desperate plight and it is no wonder that it should be dazzled by demagoguery. It will learn, however, that Hitler has no magic formula any more than Brüning has one. Out of that healthy disillusionment, no doubt, good will come.

WILLIAM TYLER PAGE'S 50 YEARS.

When the House of Representatives convened today, William Tyler Page, its Republican clerk, had served 50 years, lacking 12 days, in that historic chamber. It was as a page boy, 13 years old, that he first entered the House. Thomas Brackett Reed was then just a Congressman from Maine, and his reign as "boss" lay in the years ahead. Since that auspicious entry, 13 inaugural parades have passed through cheering throngs up Pennsylvania avenue to Capitol Hill. Cleveland, Harrison, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge have come and gone. Nine Speakers have risen to power and fallen. Washington, the Dakotas, Wyoming, Idaho, Utah, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arizona have hung stars in the flag. Four times there has been the terrific struggle of amending the Constitution. From the presence of women members, Mr. Page looks back on the heyday of high hats, tall collars, long coats and stiff shirts, and acquaintance with 8000 Congressmen in the years that lie between. Somehow a Democratic House will surely find a way to keep him in service until he at least rounds out his 50 years.

A MODERN TROUBADOUR GONE.

Vachel Lindsay was direct heir to the ancient line of wandering minstrels who roamed the countryside and traded rhymes for bread. No pale poet, aloof in his ivory tower, was he, but a modern and most American troubadour. Like the Johnny Appleseed of whom he wrote, he planted poetry over the map as that eccentric scattered orchards. Barn yards and college auditoriums, country kitchens and salons, knew him. He enjoyed most his role as beggar poet, when he took the open road with a sheaf of poems as his only currency.

His lines were not for the printed page, but to be read aloud; or better, to be chanted, crooned, declaimed, sung, shouted and acted, and his audiences will long remember how surpassingly he did all those things. Of rhyme and rhythm he was master, and his vigorous verse was his best, for he was not so fortunate in use of the classic forms. Yet he scorned to have others set his poems to music. That would be rewriting by an alien hand, he said. In the alphabet 26 letters he found music enough. So it was with "The Congo" and "Gen. William Booth Enters Heaven." The latter, Carl Van Doren called "an infectious blend of rhyme, religion and ragtime." These and similar poems concentrated the noise and color of the American scene—the Negroes' cake walk, the rattle of Salvation Army tambourines, the honking rush of autos on the highway, the political speech, children at play.

His great-grandfathers came to the West with Daniel Boone, and Lindsay, though his fame became international, was always of the West. "Here upon the prairie is our ancestral home," he chanted. Native of Lincoln's Springfield, he wrote that city, its people and the tradition of its greatest citizen into his works. His death at Springfield Saturday at 52 was as unexpected as it was untimely, but he leaves a wealth of eloquent, robust, dynamic songs that will long survive him.

"TRADE-AT-HOME" IN TWO LANDS. The Prince of Wales in a radio address has brought the people of his country to "Buy British" and thereby aid in restoring national prosperity. Simultaneously, the Ankara Government has taken steps to see that its people "Buy Turkish" by means of drastic restrictions on imports, equal almost to an embargo. The two actions are similar in intent, but far different in method and probable result. Britons are asked to give British and Empire goods the preference, but they are not forbidden to purchase abroad. Even if they were, the result is so highly organized a country as England would not be so severely as in an undeveloped land like Turkey.

Automobiles, camera films, tires and radios are among Turkey's forbidden imports. This means that Turkey must do almost entirely without these articles, for they are not manufactured there, or only in slight quantities. At the same time, the sale of Turkish products abroad will be drastically restricted. England's exports will also be reduced if she restricts her imports, but her factory development is sufficiently advanced to utilize many domestic raw materials at home, which Turkey cannot do. A trade-at-home campaign will reduce England's world trade only slightly, as compared with the results of Turkey's blockade. The campaign there may keep Turkish money at home, but it will block the modernization of that country as long as it continues. One of the unfortunate results of the depression is that it has resulted in barriers to that world trade on which the welfare of nations depends.

A CHANCE TO END GAG RULE IN THE HOUSE.

Some observers remark cynically that the Democrats are likely to lose interest in their previous agitation for reform of House rules, now that they are about to organize that body. The Republican triumvirate of past years, these commentators fear, will merely be succeeded by a Democratic triumvirate, operating under the same old dictatorial rules. The Democratic majority, however, will not exceed five votes when the new House begins its deliberations. For legislative effectiveness, the party must have the allegiance of its insurgent bloc, and this group, like the corresponding one on the Republican side, has had reform of House rules as a major objective. It could effect a deadlock if it seemed the movement was to be abandoned. And it appears unlikely that Democratic leaders, on record with denunciations of the House oligarchy, will reverse themselves publicly.

It has been the domination of the Speaker, floor leader and chairman of the Rules Committee that has reduced the House to a mere administration appendage, while the Senate took the role of people's forum. The net result of the revolt against Speaker Cannon in 1910 has been to divide his power among three men, who exercised it quite as effectively as that parliamentary czar ever did. As Representative Crisp of Georgia, Democratic leader in the fight for rules revision, said: "It is arrogant masters . . . have reduced the House to a mere cipher, an impotent legislative body." Important bills, such as the lame duck measure, have died in committee, with no provision, save a virtually unworkable rule, for bringing them to the floor. Even members of committees have been powerless to force action. Other measures, such as the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill, have been so maneuvered that only a yes-or-no vote was possible, without debate on separate provisions.

All this is not the working of democratic government. Crisp's proposed revisions include empowering the majority of a committee to force action on a bill, and providing for discharge of a committee from consideration of a measure on petition of 100 House members, thus bringing it to a vote. The present number required to discharge a committee is 215 petitioners, and it has never been possible to gather that many. Representatives could argue vigorously on the floor for a certain bill, for the benefit of constituents, while working behind the scenes to throttle it.

Reform is inevitable, if the Democratic lines hold firm, and popular representation is placed ahead of partisan ambition. Popular opinion demands the change. Even the late Speaker Longworth realized its inevitability, for he admitted last year that the rules would have to be liberalized in the Seventy-second Congress.

THE MAHATMA ENTERS SOCIETY.

According to a London dispatch, Gandhi has at last made Who's Who. We hope he appreciates the significance of this, since it means that, instead of being a flop, as he declared, the round table conference was a great success. As it will be some time before the new volume, No. 83, arrives in this country, we submit the following sketch which owners of Who's Who are free to paste in their copies pending receipt of the new edition. It is brief, but it will do in a pinch:

GANDHI, Mohandas Karamchand, invested the Mahatma; salt manufacturer and goat fancier; b. 1869 at Porbandar, Kathiawar; a. Premier of several small Indian states who refused apology to British commissioner for public rebuke; m. at the age of 13. Educ. University College, London. Called to bar by Inner Temple, but forsook practice in Bombay to enter South African struggle 1893. Director of ambulance corps during Boer War. Entered Indian nationalist movement, 1901. Sentenced to prison for six years, 1922. Served two years. Again sentenced, 1930. Released same year. Address: India. Telephone: Freedom 1931. Clubs: Bombay Country, Reform, Dairy, Recreation; spinning.

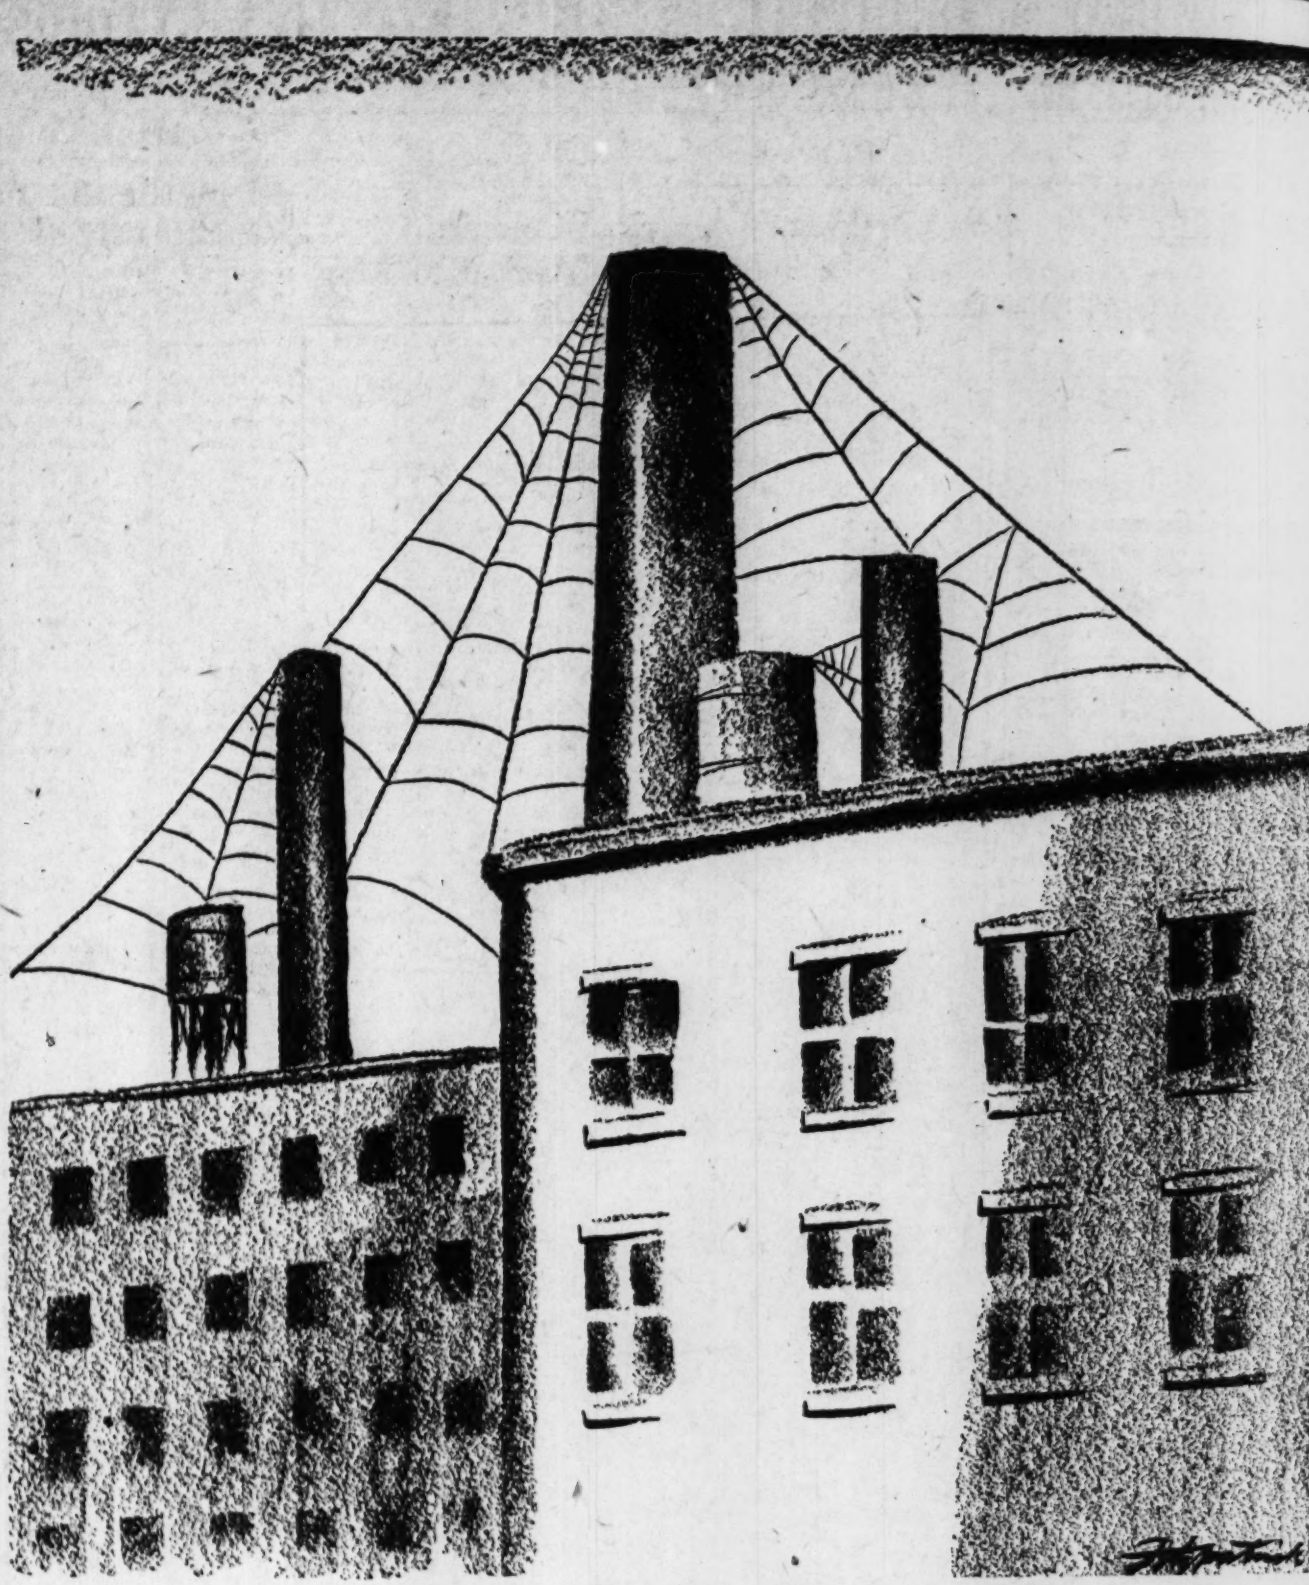

Football may be a great success as a sport at Sing Sing, but cross-country running never will get anywhere there.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN ZIG-ZAG.

Russia has just executed what Soviet leaders will call a "zig-zag," and the capitalist world will call a turn to the right. Abandonment Dec. 1 of the staggered five-day week marked the end of another Soviet experiment. Under this plan, every person worked four days, then had one day off. By reduction of the working day from six and one-half to six hours, the new schedule compensates for the loss of leisure time under the revised plan. Abandonment of the five-day schedule was forecast in Stalin's speech of last June, in which he attacked "impersonalism," or, as an American would term it, "passing the buck." This lack of responsibility he ascribed in part to the nonstop week, in which part of the workmen or supervisors were always absent on rest days, thereby lowering industrial efficiency. Stalin demanded a reform in the prevailing system to eliminate "impersonalism," or, failing that, a change to the six-day week.

Introduction of a common rest day is expected to eliminate conditions which had come to border on chaos in many plants. Labor had become disorganized, repairs to machinery were being neglected and the workers were left without supervision part of the time. Abandonment of the former plan is merely another example of the Soviet's efforts to build a backward people into an industrialized state. Previous "zig-zags," or turns to the right, have been establishment of pay on a piece-work basis, the welcoming of non-Communist technicians back into the fold and setting up of rewards for special accomplishments by workers. The Soviet, devoted as it is to the welfare of the workers and the providing of leisure time for them, has not yet come up to one aspect of capitalism, however. The American five-day week, adopted in many industries, calls for two rest days; the Soviet five-day week has only one.

Jolly old Mahatma Gandhi is probably right when he says, "There's going to be hell in India." It's popping everywhere.

WHAT HAS THE TARIFF DONE FOR US?

Needed Reforms in Local Government

Importance of smaller governing bodies has been largely overlooked, yet they have many duties and take large share of taxes; however, duplications and small-scale activities have made them inefficient; consolidation of counties would mean efficiency and economy; even without merging, however, neighboring units can co-operate.

From an Address by Ex-Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Before the Illinois Chamber of Commerce.

WE are all interested in the Federal Government. We give a good deal of thought to our State government. Our cities are more and more engaging the attention of the citizen. In the realm of county government and town government, however, it is only in recent years that students of political science or the people have felt any concern.

And yet it is precisely these governments which affect the lives of the country population most frequently and most intimately. It is to support these governments that the larger part of our taxes go. It is to these governments that we look largely for our protection. It is upon these governments that we depend for the maintenance of our cities, for the custody of our petty evidences and those awaiting trial charged with more serious crimes. It is these governments which administer our schools. It is they, too, which in a large measure build and maintain our roads and construct other local public works. Other important functions also rest upon the county and town governments. No student of the situation contends, I think, that these bodies, under present conditions, are either economic or efficient.

For the protection of our lives and property, we have within the same jurisdiction a number of courts, each absolutely independent of the others, with questions of jurisdiction constantly arising. We have Justices of the Peace. We have Probate Courts. We have County Courts. We have courts of general jurisdiction. Courts in these days have much to do with even purely administrative affairs. It is not conceivable that they can function simply, inexpensively and effectively as they are now constituted.

Isn't it possible to substitute for these diverse courts a single unified court for the county? We should, many think, move all the powers which these different courts now have into a single court. Such court could be in continuous session. The citizen of the county who had occasion to resort to a court would not have to consult a lawyer before he could know to which one to apply. Instead of being obliged to employ a set of subordinate officials for each of the courts, one set of these officials would answer all the needs of the consolidated court, these minor officials to be appointed by the court and not elected at the polls.

Our county jails have been a disgrace to our country for more than a hundred years. One eminent writer says that to find a parallel it is necessary to go back to Turkey and the thirteenth century. Our county almshouses have been a reproach to our civilization since they were first established. This is not the fault of the officials, who, in the main, are humane and considerate men. It is the system which is to blame. The inmates of the county jails and the inmates of the almshouses are too few in number for modern or humane or economical administration of either. These places should be abolished altogether, and in their place should come either regional or state institutions.

With reference to the schools, the state has been compelled to exercise an ever widening supervision over the local authorities. The state, too, has gradually come to exercise some sort of authority over public health administration. It is evident, then, I think, that the county no longer functions as a successful government.

In the average county of Illinois—and this is true of most states—the salaries of county officials absorb a very large percentage of the total revenues of the county, running as high as 50 per cent. That these officials could serve a much larger territory in most instances, no one who is familiar with the situation can for a moment doubt. The County Judge is but one instance of this. Even in the smallest county of this State, he receives a salary of $1800 a year while, as a matter of fact, his actual official duties can be performed in an insignificant portion of his time.

The Constitution of Illinois expressly authorizes the formation of two or more counties into districts for the discharge of this function of government. I realize the practical difficulty in effecting the consolidation of counties. Without such consolidation, however, contiguous counties, to a large extent, can be united to administer revenue, schools, highways, health, charities and other subjects of state concern.

The people can control their own affairs only if they can definitely locate responsibility. This is impossible where the powers of government are distributed among many officials, all engaged in a common task. It is not possible to locate responsibility where the county has taken over new functions to exercise these functions. County public road work and county welfare work are illustrations of this.

In any ideal reconstruction of county government, the boundaries would be so changed as to make of the county a natural economic and social unit, regard being paid to the principal cities and towns and the territory naturally tributary to such. The aim would be to create a county in which community activities and community consciousness were possible. That it is possible to reconstitute the local subdivisions of government so as to enhance community co-operation and community consciousness no one can doubt. And therefore, instead of local self-rule suffering, it would in reality be advanced.

The town, or township, as it is sometimes called, is a still smaller unit of government which has largely survived its needs. No one but the town assessors know what its boundaries are. In the earlier days of slow and difficult transportation to the county seat, the township had real significance. It was small in extent because otherwise citizens could not assemble even once a year. Gradually its functions have been taken over by the county.

In this State, we formerly had town collectors of taxes. These officials did little

If America Were Japan

New York World-Telegram.

A JAPANESE petty officer was killed one day in Manchuria. The Japanese Government said the Chinese did it. The Chinese said they did not. Japan started a war over the incident—at least that was the first excuse given by the Tokio Government for sweeping across Manchuria with her armies.

At about the same time, two Mexican soldiers were killed in the United States. There was no doubt about who did it. Two American Deputy Sheriffs did the shooting. Unlike the Japanese petty officer, the Mexicans were not obscure persons, but one was a relative of the President of Mexico. Unlike the Japanese officer, who was hostile to the Chinese population, the Mexican boys were completely innocent of any antagonism to America.

An American court has now acquitted the Americans of murder charges. Feeling in Mexico against the United States is running high. There are demonstrations in Mexico against us, just as there were demonstrations in Japan against China.

Japan would not think Mexico justified in starting a war against the United States over these killings. The United States does not think Japan is justified in starting a war over the Manchurian killing. Perhaps if Japan will consider the Mexican-American case, it may give her enough perspective to see herself as the world sees her.

The Chinese broke their treaty pledges to Japan—so Japan says. Therefore Japan is fighting a war against China to preserve the sanctity of treaties. That, at least, is the latest excuse given by the Tokio Government for the military invasion of Chinese territory. Japan is breaking her treaty pledges to the United States and other nations. Japan is violating the League of Nations Covenant and the (American) Nine-Power Treaty and the (American) Kellogg Pact.

If Japan has a right to invade China for breaking a treaty, the United States and other nations have an equal right to invade Japan, bomb Japanese cities, overthrow Japanese Governments, kill thousands of Japanese citizens for breaking a treaty. That foreign invasion would seem very unreasonable to Japan. It would be unreasonable—so unreasonable that neither the League of Nations nor the United States is planning such a military invasion.

Perhaps, if Japan will consider this case of broken treaties, it may give her enough perspective to see herself as others see her.

or nothing, and were rewarded with 2 per cent upon the taxes paid. During my service as Governor, we abolished these township collectors. The result has been a direct saving to the State of more than $1,600,000 annually, with the taxes collected more efficiently than before by the county officials. Competent authority estimates that the indirect saving has been in excess of this $2,000,000.

It is often said we have too much government. Whether this be true or not, it certainly is a fact that we have too many governments. An extreme illustration is the County of Cook, in this State. Chicago, as you know, is situated in this county. All the activities of the county, social, economic and political, revolve around that city. In fact, Cook County comprises only a part of the metropolitan district of which Chicago is the heart. Portions of other counties are as directly related to Chicago as Cook County is. And yet Cook County alone contains within its borders 592 independent local governments. Is it any wonder that Chicago, with all its vast resources, should be in financial distress?

'LOST SHEEP' FUNNY
THOUGH SUGGESTIVEDorothea Chard Again Stars Farce Comedy at the Orpheum.

LOST SHEEP—a comedy in three acts, based on the story of the Red Light, is being presented at the Orpheum Theatre with Dorothea Chard as the star. The play is a farce comedy, and is being presented at the Orpheum Theatre with Dorothea Chard as the star. The play is a farce comedy, and is being presented at the Orpheum Theatre with Dorothea Chard as the star.

DURING the war we saw, in Paris, at a time when anything went, an outrageously funny one-act farce at the Grand Guignol called "Red Light." A little piece about a man who hung a red light in front of his house so that he could find his way back home at night. Gentlemen about town understood the signal and, in a tipsy visit upon the great dell of the Parisian show goes. A piece of the same sort of a comedy, lengthened to three acts, has come to the Orpheum Theatre, a New York success of last season, with Mary Hart presented at her downtown house for a two weeks' run. The red light, but within the house this time, but previous character of the build is pretty thoroughly established. It is saying "Lost Sheep" is suggestive of a nice piece of work, there is not a line nor a situation in the farce which carries any deeper meaning than the one the audience intended it should—and his intentions were, as you may easily guess, the worst.

You see a real estate agent in the little town of Elber, England, had a house on the hill, the previous occupants having been driven out, over night, a sudden moral wave. The Reverend William Wampus, called a parish in the town, arrived at that moment with his wife and three pretty daughters, and, all conscious of the reputation of resort, moved in, bag and baggage. The red push furniture, the gas electric lights and other accessories which need not be mentioned here, but which are frequently referred to in the play, might have war them, but the Wampuses were simple folk and were thorough pleased with the magnificence of their new surroundings.

The gentlemen about town, arrive. Mrs. Wampus is too upon as just another proprietor, her three daughters are given hearty welcome. Out of the moral, and, let us repeat, very farce, a romance develops between the youngest of the girls and a youth of the town, a son of a crossing clergyman. The man is all cleared up by the time three comes to an end, of cost and "Lost Sheep" ends pre-emptively.

To Dorothea Chard again, the first hours of the comedy in "A Modern Virgin," her appearance of innocence able her to put over lines coming from a more sophisticated actress, would be highly effective. Pierre Watkins, as Higher, does a nice piece of work, also has a splendid comedy, and James Bush gives a fine tragedy as the youth who finds himself under the red light. Mrs. Wampus is excellent, too. Mrs. Wampus, and Kenneth B. does a nice piece of work as simple Rev. Wampus.

"Lost Sheep" is well put throughout and is very funny, entertaining—to those who can that sort of entertainment.

AT MIDTOWN EMPRESS THEAWork of Alice Baker Feature Farce Comedy Presented by O. D. Woodward.

"MARY'S OTHER HUSBAND" is a comedy in three acts, presented by O. D. Woodward, with the following cast: Mary Marshall, Alice Baker, George Allen, Harry Allen, Bobbie Allen, Frank Allen, Duane Allen, and others.

THERE is nothing in "Mary's Other Husband," which O. D. Woodward is presenting, at Midtown Empire Theatre, week, to differentiate it from a number of other comedies built around mixed identities, but it is many plays, among them "Mary's Other Husband," that give an enjoyable and amusing picture in the theater without any history or breaking any record. The formula, however old, is fairly sure of a lot of laughs, the approval of last night's show was more manifest and better than for any piece hit given by Woodward and his company this season.

The story is familiar, and childish. Mrs. Mary Marshall, romantically imaginative, like the Marshall household is "just movie scenario after another."

POTATO DUMPLINGS FOR MEAT STEWS

Boil and mash eight large potatoes. Cool, and when cold add two eggs and beat well, then little by little add two cups flour and season with salt and pepper. Cut three slices stale bread in small cubes and brown them in butter. Shape the potato mixture into small balls and stick a cube of the fried bread in the center of each. Roll balls in flour, or flour your hands while shaping them so they do not stick. Have ready a kettle of boiling water, add salt, and drop in a few of the dumplings at a time. Boil steadily for 10 to 12 minutes. Drain and serve with meat stews.

PINEAPPLE MOUSSE

Soak two tablespoons gelatin in two tablespoons cold water, dissolve over hot water. Combine two cups drained crushed pineapple, three-fourths cup granulated sugar and the gelatin. Stir well and place in refrigerator until it begins to thicken. Whip two cups cream, add tablespoon lemon juice, whip a minute longer, then fold in the pineapple mixture. Turn into tray of electric refrigerator and let it stand between two and three hours. Stir at the end of one hour.

SPONGE CAKE WAFFLES

WITH HONEY SAUCE

Try this for dessert some Sunday night supper. Beat three eggs very light, add one cup granulated sugar gradually and keep on beating. Add one cup cake flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Stir in one-fourth cup water, three tablespoons melted butter and one-half teaspoon lemon extract. Bake about two and one-half minutes in hot waffle iron. Serve with liquid honey.

HOME-MADE CANDY

FOR HOLIDAY TREAT

Fondant Foundation May Be Transformed Into Many Sweets.

Christmas will be all the sweeter for boxes of homemade candy for home consumption and little gifts to friends. And the Saturday afternoon party for children or older youngsters is given a delightful touch by dainty plates of "mother's candy" on the tea table.

A variety of candies can be made if one has a good fondant recipe. Candied fruits, nuts, dates, raisins and figs may be added to make many goodies. Heavenly hash and butterscotch marshmallows may be successfully prepared at home also.

Fondant Basic Recipe.

Put two cups sugar, one-half cup water and two tablespoons white corn syrup in a saucepan and stir constantly until sugar dissolves. Then heat rapidly to boiling point and boil without stirring until a little of the mixture dropped in cold water forms a soft ball, or until it reaches 235 degrees on a candy thermometer. During the boiling, wash down the sides of saucepan with a swab made by wrapping cheesecloth around times of a fork and then dipping it in cold water. This helps prevent sugar crystals forming.

Remove at once from fire when fondant reaches the soft ball stage and pour out on a large oiled platter. Let stand undisturbed until cooled enough to put hand on the bottom of the platter. Then heat with a spit spoon or a spatula until white and creamy. Knead with hands to a smooth, creamy ball, place in a crock or bowl, cover with a damp cloth and set away to ripen for two or three days before using.

Heavenly Hash.

Heavenly hash is a confection that pleases chocolate lovers. Put one-half pound each bitter chocolate and sweet cooking chocolate in a double boiler and heat over warm water, not boiling, until the chocolates melt. Stir frequently to hasten melting. Butter oblong pan and cover with one-half pound marshmallows cut in quarters, and one-half pound chopped nut meats—any kind. Pour the melted chocolate over the mixture so that it is all covered. Let stand until almost hard, then cut in put back on the bottom of the platter. Then heat with a spit spoon or a spatula until white and creamy. Knead with hands to a smooth, creamy ball, place in a crock or bowl, cover with a damp cloth and set away to ripen for two or three days before using.

Butterscotch Marshmallows. Choose large, fresh marshmallows and brush each one to free it of excess powder. Put two cups sugar in a saucepan and add one-half cup water, one-half cup white corn syrup, one tablespoon molasses and two tablespoons butter. Stir until sugar dissolves, then boil without stirring until mixture reaches the brittle stage when a little is dropped in cold water. Remove at once from fire. Dip marshmallows, one at a time, in the butterscotch and place on well oiled pans to harden. Work quickly dipping the marshmallows into the syrup with a two-tined fork.

CABBAGE SOUP

After soaking and draining, chop fine a small white cabbage, removing center tough pieces. Cook in a pint of water until tender; add a little more water if necessary. Rub through a colander with the water. Cream one-fourth cup butter with two tablespoons flour; in the double boiler, bring to the scald a pint of milk with two slices onion. Stir in the cabbage, butter and flour and season with salt and pepper. Bring all to the boil, strain and serve with toasted and buttered bread squares.

Chicken Pie.

Boil a plump young fowl until tender, adding a little celery and a few slices of onion to the water. Take out the chicken and remove skin. Cut into small pieces. Combine with four chopped hard-boiled eggs. Thicken the stock with one tablespoon cornstarch dissolved in a little cold milk and season with salt and pepper. Line a baking dish with pie crust. Put in the chicken and eggs and pour the sauce over them. Place a crust over the top of the dish, cutting several slashes for steam to escape. Bake in a moderate oven until nicely browned.

Chocolate Bread Pudding. Melt in a double boiler two squares unsweetened chocolate, add three-quarters cup sugar, one quart milk, one-half if teaspoon salt, two cups dry bread crumbs. Beat two eggs, add the hot mixture and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a greased baking dish, set in a pan of hot water, and bake in a moderate oven for about one hour, or until the pudding is firm in the center. Serve hot with plain or whipped cream.

Creaming Butter for Cakes. This means to mash and beat the butter with a spoon until it has the texture of a thick cream. When the sugar is added, the creaming should continue until mixture is light and fluffy.

Hard Sauce. Cream one-half cup butter thoroughly, then add very slowly one and one-half cups of sugar, creaming steadily as the sugar sifts in. Flavor with one teaspoon vanilla, add last.

GRANDMOTHER'S JAM CAKE

Beat three eggs, add one cup granulated sugar, one cup sour milk and one-half cup of jam. Sift together two cups cake flour, one-half teaspoon each of cloves and cinnamon, one teaspoon baking powder and one teaspoon soda. Add to egg mixture.

Stir in two-thirds cup melted butter and beat thoroughly. Bake in two greased cake tins in moderate oven about half an hour. Spread with plain white icing.

RASPBERRY CUP

Mix one-half cup raspberries, one and one-third cups raspberry juice, one cup orange juice and one-half cup lemon juice with one-half cup granulated sugar, and let it stand two hours in refrigerator.

When ready to serve, add one quart carbonated water, and pour over ice cubes. This makes about 15 punch cups and is delightful for the small party.

BAKED CORN RECIPES WITH TOMATOES OR CRUMBS

Mix one cup thin white sauce with two cups canned corn, one slightly beaten egg, salt and pepper to taste and a one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Put in buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until crumbs are browned.

Mix one can corn, one can tomato sauce, two tablespoons sugar, one tablespoon butter and two well-beaten eggs. Put in buttered baking dish and bake until firm.

SQUASH PIE

Mix two-thirds cup brown sugar with one-half teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon ginger and one teaspoon cinnamon. Beat two eggs slightly and add two cups milk. Combine with other ingredients and one and one-half cups canned or drained and stewed squash, and add one tablespoon of melted butter. Beat well and pour into unbaked pastry shell and bake in moderate oven for about 45 minutes.

Corn Pudding.

To two cups canned corn add one cup rich sweet milk, two eggs, a tablespoon butter, salt and pepper. Mix corn, milk, seasoning, melted butter and beaten egg yolk. Beat egg whites stiff and fold in. Bake 45 minutes in moderate oven.

BOUILLON AND SOUP FOR CONVALESCENTS

Strengthening and Taste Tempting Liquids for the Invalid.

When the invalid begins to think of food again, it's hard to reconcile his desires with what is advisable to give him.

There's nothing more practical than home-made soup or bouillon, rich in food values, appetizing and easy to digest. Either beef bouillon or creamed vegetable soup, the latter made from peas, brussels sprouts, asparagus, broccoli or spinach, will be appreciated. Make enough of both for the family dinner at the same time.

Creamed Vegetable Soup. Cook a thinly sliced onion in one tablespoon butter until it is rather tender. Add two cups of vegetable (whichever one you choose to serve), one pint of water and simmer for 30 minutes. Press through a sieve, then add thickening made by blending two tablespoons butter with two tablespoons flour. Bring to boiling point, season with salt and pepper, and combine with three cups of milk scalded before adding.

Clear Beef Bouillon. Cut two pounds lean beef in small pieces, put in a deep soup kettle, add two quarts cold water and let stand for 20 minutes. Cut one pound lean meat in pieces, and brown in shortening in a hot frying pan, then add to the soaked meat, and water together with a good sized marrow bone. Heat to boiling point, skim, add one tablespoon salt, one-half cup each diced celery, sliced onion and turnip, and simmer just below the boiling point for five hours.

Strain, cool, remove the fat and clear the stock. To do this, measure the stock, and allow 1 egg white and shell to each quart stock. Beat the egg white slightly and mix with one tablespoon water. Crush the shell and add the white and the shell to the stock. Heat, stirring constantly, and when boiling let boil for three minutes. Remove from fire, let stand undisturbed for 20 minutes, then strain through a double thickness of cheesecloth.

CUP CAKES RELISHED FOR SCHOOL LUNCHES

Good Also for Home Meals and the Older Children's Parties.

Little cup cakes of many flavors are excellent for luncheon, either at home or school, and may well be served on other occasions.

Not as rich as layer cake, they better suit the juvenile taste and there are many recipes which may be followed. Cakes may be iced or plain as one wishes.

Orange Cakes. Orange cup cakes are delicious and an orange icing doubles the fruit charm. To make the cakes, cream one-half cup butter and one cup sugar, add three beaten eggs, then dry ingredients sifted together, including two teaspoons baking powder, and two cups flour. Alternate adding these with adding two-thirds cup orange juice. Bake about 15 minutes in greased muffin tins.

For the orange icing, mix one-quarter cup hot orange juice, one tablespoon hot melted butter, one tablespoon grated orange rind and two cups powdered sugar. Beat thoroughly.

Ginger Cakes. Mix and sift together one and a half cups flour, one-quarter cup sugar, one-half teaspoon soda, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon ginger, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-eighth teaspoon cloves. Add one-half cup sour milk, one-half cup molasses, one-quarter cup melted shortening and one beaten egg. Mix very well and bake in moderate oven in greased muffin tins for about 20 minutes.

Fig Cakes. Cream together one-quarter cup butter and one cup sugar, add two eggs well beaten, beat again, add one-half cup milk, two-thirds cup chopped, drained canned figs; one teaspoon lemon juice. Mix well, then add two cups flour sifted with one-quarter teaspoon salt and two teaspoons baking powder. Beat all well, and turn into greased tins and bake in moderately hot oven about 20 minutes.

Plain Cakes. Cream one-half cup butter and one cup sugar, add two eggs, beating all until light and fluffy. Sift one and three-quarters cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder and one-half teaspoon salt together. Add alternately to butter mixture with three-quarter cup milk. Finally add one and a half teaspoons vanilla. Bake about 25 minutes in moderate oven in muffin tins.

TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL. Add one bay leaf, one teaspoon celery salt and one-half teaspoon onion juice to two cups tomato juice and let stand in refrigerator two hours before serving. Remove bay leaf and pour into small glasses. Place a small piece of lemon on plate with glass, as some like to add a little lemon juice to the cocktail.

MASHED AND BAKED TURNIPS. Cut turnips into cubes, boil until tender. Put in buttered baking dish, pour over them white sauce, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake until browned. Combine equal amounts of mashed turnips and mashed white potatoes, season well with butter, pepper and salt.

CHEESE SALADS. Slice apples in thick pieces and spread each piece with pimento cheese. Serve on watercress with topping of mayonnaise. Take slices of pineapple, thin cream cheese with a little evaporated milk, form in balls, roll in nuts and orange on pineapple, serving with French dressing.

Mashed Carrots. Two bunches new carrots, two tablespoons butter, salt, pepper. Cook carrots without peeling in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, peel and mash with a potato masher. Add butter, salt and one tablespoon minced parsley. Serve in a heated vegetable dish. Many persons prefer this method of serving carrots to the creamed variety.

Snow Pudding. Remove the pulp from 12 oranges and mix with one cup grated coconut, one cup sugar and three tablespoons lemon juice. Place in a bowl for serving and cover with one cup more of grated coconut, over which one cup powdered sugar is dusted. All ingredients should be chilled before using.

Spiced Grape Juice. Mix together one quart grape juice, one-half cup of sugar, 12 short pieces of stick cinnamon, 12 cloves and one-half teaspoon salt. Bring to the boiling point and let stand for several hours. When ready to serve, reheat, remove the spices, add lemon juice if desired. Serve hot with sandwiches or cookies.

Meat Pies. Any left-over meat may be tastily served the next day in the form of a meat pie. A biscuit crust may be the top, or a layer of mashed potatoes is good browned over the gravy and meat.

Vegetable Stock. Don't throw away the liquid from canned vegetables, or water in which fresh vegetables is cooked. Either is good added to soup, or used thickened in gravy.

DATE, NUT AND APPLE SALAD. Two firm apples, two teaspoons lemon juice, two-thirds teaspoon salt, one-third teaspoon paprika, one-half cup coarsely broken nuts, 12 dates, stoned and cut small.

Peel, core and cut apples coarsely, squeeze lemon juice over them and add salt and paprika. Toss all well together with nuts and dates and mix with one-half cup mayonnaise. Pile in cup-shaped lettuce leaves and garnish with mayonnaise.

Cabbage Salad. Combine two cups finely grated cabbage with one-third cup minced green pepper, one-half tablespoon minced onion and French dressing.

Poysters. Beat the white of one egg very stiff, add a pinch of salt, the yolk of which has been well beaten, one cup of milk and last, one cup of flour. Beat very well for 10 minutes. Put a large tablespoon of butter in hissing hot iron pans that have been well greased with butter. minutes. This makes 12.

BREASON AND BALL GO TO CHICAGO FOR MAJOR LEAGUE MEETINGS

TRADES, RADIO, SCHEDULE, NEW BALL AND SALARY CUTS ON AGENDA

By J. Roy Stockton.

Owners of major league baseball clubs will open their annual three-day meeting in Chicago tomorrow, and while it is expected that most of the conversation will deal with a general reduction of salaries, radio, the schedule, changes in the ball and the chain store idea, the fans will be watching eagerly for announcements of player trades.

President Sam Breason of the World Champion Cardinals departed this morning to make arrangements for a dinner he will give to his brother managers, in the role of owner of the new world champions. Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager will fly to Chicago this afternoon. The Browns will be represented by President Phil Ball and Vice President L. C. McKoy.

St. Louis baseball followers will watch the news of the meeting with particular interest, as prominent members of the Browns and Cardinals have been placed on the trading block by Mrs. D. Rumor. Sam Breason has said repeatedly that he has not talked or considered any trades, except the sale of Andy High to Cincinnati, but rumors don't pay much attention to official denials and the fans continue to wonder if Chick Hafey or Jim Bottomley or Burleigh Grimes will be traded by the world champions.

Kress on Market?

While the Cardinals are in a fine strategic position and will be favorites in the next pennant race even if they don't make any changes, the Browns need considerable help and rumor has it that Ralph Kress will be offered in an effort to arrange a trade that will add punch to the St. Louis team. Several clubs would like to land the red-headed shortstop, but if any offers have been made, the Browns have kept them secret.

The American League is expected to vote for changes in its official ball. Last year the American League ball was much more lively than the one used in the senior major circuit and it is understood that the American Leaguers want to make the ball more like the National model.

There has been criticism in some quarters of the practice of scheduling Sunday doubleheaders, by moving up week-day games, and the subject undoubtedly will be discussed at the two league meetings. Then, if the subject remains interesting it may be submitted at the joint meeting Thursday.

Bad News for Players.

While proponents of a general salary reduction have gone so far as to suggest a league limit, it is not expected that the owners will take any such drastic move. It is more probable that they will go on record as agreeing to reduce the payroll. League action of that sort will make it easier for the managers to offer contracts calling for reduced salaries.

Opponents of radio broadcasting are expected to make their annual protest at the meeting, but several strong clubs, including the Cardinals and Cubs, are friendly toward the radio and no official action is expected.

Hack Wilson, champion home-run hitter in 1920 and champion "bust" in 1931, may be assigned to a new team, during the meeting. He was suspended without pay late last year, the suspension costing him approximately $6000. It is taken for granted that he will play another game for the Cubs, but because of his high salary—his 1931 contract called for $35,000—the Chicago club may find it difficult to trade or sell him. Several major league owners, including Sam Breason of the Cardinals, have declared that they won't take Wilson at any price.

U. S. C. FIVE STARTS TOUR OF THE MIDWEST

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 7.—Ten University of Southern California basketball players and Coach Sam Barry left last night for an eight-game invasion of the Middle West.

CHANGES TAKE PLACE IN OHIO CONFERENCES

DEFIANCE, O., Dec. 7.—Manchester (Ind.) and Wilmington colleges will replace the gaps left in the Northwest Ohio Conference by the withdrawal of Bowling Green State College and the University of Toledo. It was understood today by Paul K. Lyne, coach of Defiance College.

Defiance, Findlay and Bluffton, the remaining schools in the conference, are scheduling football games with Manchester and Wilmington, Lyne said, and expect them to join the circuit.

Bowling Green and Toledo dropped out of the league with the intention of joining the Ohio Conference.

Billiken Stars Prepare for Basket Season

LEO GRANDONE (left) will be at center and OWEN MCCARTHY (right) at a forward position when the St. Louis U. quintet opens its season against McKendree College tomorrow night.

High Schools Tune Up for Championship Games Friday

By Harold Tuthill

Despite the fact that the City High Schools have not had sufficient time in which to prepare themselves for the basketball season, the opening doubleheader at St. Louis University Gymnasium Friday night, promises to be a good one. Beaumont opposes Cleveland in the first contest at 8 o'clock and Roosevelt plays Central at 9.

Soldan, the defending champion of the circuit, draws the initial bye, but the West Enders will meet Principia Junior College Saturday night at the Howard Gymnasium. The preliminary to this game will be between Principia Academy and Clayton.

There will be a hurried attempt to get into some sort of playing shape during the week, as all of the schools have non-league battles. Central plays at Wellston, Roosevelt at Western Military Academy, and Beaumont is host to the Warrenton, Mo., five tomorrow, while on Thursday Cleveland is the guest of McBride.

Non-Conference Games Begin
Bayless plays at Hancock and Riverview Gardens on Wednesday. Although the last four schools are members of the St. Louis County League their records will not be included in the county standing. The contests that will affect the

JOHNNY NICHOLS TO MEET TULSA FIGHTER

ON TIPPETT'S CARD
Johnny Nichols, Southern featherweight who now calls St. Louis his home, has agreed to meet Rubie Johnson of Tulsa, Ok., in an eight-round scrap on Friday night's boxing card at the Croftian A. C. hall, 1439 Chouteau.

The coming battle marks the second meeting between Nichols and Johnson, the latter gaining the decision in their previous bout. Al Stillman, who meets Bobby Hamilton in an eight-rounder, Matthews has been working out with Dave Knost and feels certain he will win over his Boston adversary.

The show is being held under the auspices of the Walter Hatzfeld American Legion Post of which Jack C. Tippett is matchmaker.

U. S. C. ELEVEN DRILLS FOR GAME SATURDAY WITH GEORGIA TEAM

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 7.—A bit bruised and battered by last Saturday's engagement with the University of Washington Huskies, the Trojan players of the University of Southern California were to take a light signal practice this afternoon in preparation for the game Saturday with the University of Georgia Bulldogs. The Georgia team will arrive tomorrow.

Coach Clark, understood to Tom Mallory, at left halfback, suffered a cracked knee cap in the Washington game, and will be out until the New Year's day contest with Tulane. Mallory himself is limping from a bruised hip while Johnny Baker, guard, pulled a cartilage near one of his lower ribs. Both, however, will be able to play Saturday.

FIVE CANDIDATES FOR U. S. ICE SKATING TEAM REPORT FOR TRAINING

By the Associated Press.
BEAR MOUNTAIN, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Five of the 18 candidates for the 1932 United States speed skating team already have entered training here.

Reporting to the team manager, William M. Taylor, yesterday were Ray Murray, Walter Rutter, Herbert Taylor, Carl Springer, all of New York, and Melvin Johnson of Detroit. The rest of the squad is expected during the week.

Training quarters for the team consist of a large log cabin, an indoor ice rink and a large lake on which a regulation Olympic 400-meter track will be laid out as the ice has formed solidly.

HUNK ANDERSON WILL VISIT MAYO CLINIC FOR PHYSICAL CHECKUP

By the Associated Press.
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 7.—As soon as he has tied up all the loose ends of Notre Dame's 1931 football season, Coach Hearty (Hunk) Anderson will go to the Mayo Brothers' clinic at Rochester, Minn., for a checkup.

Anderson spent many weeks at the clinic early this year, suffering first with sprains and later with appendicitis. He plans to get a thorough overhauling before any other illness has a chance at attack him.

FRENCH TEAMS TO GET FIRST TWO PRIZES IN SIX-DAY BIKE RACE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—First and second prizes in the six-day bike race, held here last week, will be awarded today to four Frenchmen who forged to the front in the closing hours of the grand, Alfredo Letourner and Marcel Guimbretti finished first, one lap ahead of Georges Couprey and Michel Pequeux. A total of $50,000 in purses will be awarded.

GREENLEAF AND RUDOLPH TIED FOR FIRST PLACE IN CUE TOURNEY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Erwin Rudolph, Cleveland, defending champion, will play Al Miller, Racine, Wis., today when the world's pocket billiard tourney is resumed.

Rudolph, who with Ralph Greenleaf, New York, has fought it out for honors in the last two world classics, has played sensationally to date and with Greenleaf has won three games. The two are the only undefeated players in the tournament.

In other games today Arnold Ponzi, Philadelphia, will engage O. Lauri, Brooklyn; Spencer Lively, Los Angeles, will meet Robert Lindholm, Seattle, and Frank Taberski, Schenectady, will oppose Marcel Camp, Detroit. The Rudolph-Miller game is carded for this evening.

Twenty-two games have been played, 24 are listed for this week, 19 next week and one on the final night, Dec. 21. According to C. A. Storor, president of the National Billiard Association of America, the 1931 championship will be the most successful conducted in years. The first week surpassed in attendance the opening week figures for 1929.

CHARITY GAME
NETS $16,000

Missouri University, which Saturday lost to the St. Louis University football eleven in the charity match at Walsh Stadium, has been added to the Billikens' 1932 schedule. This was decided at a meeting between Coach Chile Walsh and Chester L. Brewer, director of athletics at Missouri, at a conference last Saturday. The date for the meeting will be decided later.

Brewer, Missouri, in announcing its schedule recently had Nov. 19 open, while it is understood that this date is still open on the Billikens' schedule.

The charity game, which the Billikens play, 21-6, thus taking the State championship, netted $16,110 to charity.

St. Louis University players

ing their own song with success were Captain Cecil Mullerleile, Tom Turner, Bill Salinsky, John de Christoforo, Frank Kennedy and Al Pelt. The most famous of them probably will be remembered forever because it was his great persuasive work that helped the Bills win eight of their 10 games.

The year I had enjoyed since the time of Eddie Cochems. Reviewing the season, it is seen that the Bills opened with a 27-0 victory over Jamestown College at home on Jan. 16.

After taking the team to St. Louis because of buck fever and county paralysis with the result that they finally won the session.

Coch Coach Charles "Chlie" Walsh's men took games from Co. 26 to 0; Rolla, 1 to 0; and Grinnell, 43 to 6. A round trip for the extra point was made by the team to Iowa before the undefeated Oklahoma City held Buys, 14 to 13, for the second and last defeat of the cam-

Then followed a 32-to-6 victory from Loyola of New Orleans. The second round, the undefeated Davis-Elkins team suffered the same fate as the majority of its predecessors, and left St. Louis with a 26-to-8 defeat marring its record. The elation following the Davis-Elkins victory faded up the Billikens to such an extent that they revengeed 45 of score against Washington University with a 24-to-9 count. It was the first time in 14 years that St. Louis had won from Washington.

The new feature in the Winter Games is the skating programs will start tonight. A series of four 100-meter races will follow. A handicap race will follow. The fastest skater will start from scratch. The other contestants drawing from the handicap will start from the back of the pack. A silver pitcher will be the prize for the fastest skater. The greatest total of points during the series.

Brands, Missouri State champion, made his first appearance in a race tonight, since he won the Marathon skating championship last April.

A consolation match race between Clarence, former champion, and Elsie Laskowitz, the Missouri state champion, will start a series of three races to decide a in the consolation series. Four sectional champions of 1930 repeated this year, either outright or partially. Tulane, which shared the Southern conference with Alabama a year ago, finished all alone at the top this year, unbeaten and untied in 11 games. Northwestern and Michigan, which tied for the Big Ten title in 1930, gained a third share with Purdue this season. Utah and Duke again won the Rocky Mountain and Missouri Valley conference championships outright.

Two Gif Games This Week.

In the slim schedule for this week two games stand out. Army and Tulane will renew their old rivalry in the Yankee Stadium here Saturday for the benefit of the unemployed. At Los Angeles Southern California, making its last stand before the Rose Bowl game, must tackle the powerful Georgia Bulldogs.

There are four other attractions this week, all for charity. At New York Wednesday, Cornell, Penn. and Yale will combine to compete in an elimination tournament similar to that in which Yale emerged the victor over Brown, Holy Cross and Dartmouth last week. On Thursday Washington, star of the Alabama teams of 1930 and previous years will play three 20-minute "games" against Georgetown. George Washington

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—Tulane's championship football team, victors over Washington last week here Sunday, has been allowed to break training and will not be called back to the football camp until after this week, when the squad will settle down to drill for the battle which will be fought Saturday against Southern California.

The week was expected to mend injuries, the most serious being Fullback Pelt's twisted ankle and Tailback Pelt's broken finger. Coach Benji Bernard expects to have all of his varsity players ready to go by New Year's and for the on and meeting of the teams yesterday. Des Moines won the first game on Nov. 15, by 14 to 6.

McGinn kicked a field goal from placement in the first quarter, scored a touchdown in the third quarter and added the extra point with another place kick. His field goal was from about the 25-yard line.

As expected, "Chuck" Delmege, left end of the Des Moines eleven, played brilliantly for the visitors, but he shared the spotlight for the Iowa team with Russ Fisher, halfback, who was a great ball carrier and a sure tackler all afternoon.

The team did not show their usual playing ability, a factor due to the weather and spring seasons.

Des Moines has seen only the Gunners cross its goal line in 12 contests. It came here with a record of 10 victories in 11 starts, but how the team scored 261 points before yesterday's battle is hard to Concordia Seminary will open its basketball season on Friday, Dec. 11, meeting the strong Arkansas Aggie quintet. Coach Oehlers has been holding practice for the past four weeks. Concordia is holding its workouts in the C. B. C. gymnasium on the Clayton Road again this year.

Coach Oehlers is new to local basketball, having coached at the college level for the role. He made his debut in the local sport world last spring as Concordia's baseball coach. Oehlers is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin. He has also played basketball and baseball. He was also a member of the old time Leacock's basketball quintet. He was also a professional baseball player after his graduation, playing with Cedar Rapids and other teams.

Three have shown promise and will add much needed strength in the center and forward positions. Bredeemeier, measuring six feet one inch in height, has shown enough ability in the tryouts to earn the regular position at center. Paulson and the same boy school, are two new men on the squad and are putting up a good exhibition in competition for the forward berths. Undoubtedly both will see much service in the coming campaign. Herzog, a center, Strelow and Tubensing, forwards, complete the squad at Concordia.

Eleven Games on Schedule.

The Froshers' schedule calls for eleven games, the first of which will be played at the home of the team.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 7.—Jerry Dalrymple, All-America end and captain of Tulane University's football team, was brought to a hospital here today with a kidney ailment which teammates fear may keep him out of the Rose Bowl game against Southern California at Pasadena New Year's day.

He was stricken while driving an automobile in McComb, Miss., yesterday. He was given medical attention there at the home of friends and was brought to New Orleans by train today.

Dr. Robert H. Brumfield, who examined Dalrymple at McComb soon after he was stricken, said he was suffering with a contusion of the kidney, caused by a blow in Saturday's game.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Despite a bushels decrease of United States wheat stocks and notwithstanding the low primary article, wheat prices leveled off. Drouth reports from winter wheat territory Southwest, bullish factor. On the other hand business in North American wheat volume, totaling only 250,000 bushels closed Canadian.

Wheat close nervous, unchanged. Corn unchanged to $\frac{1}{4}$ c. Oats a shade to $\frac{1}{4}$ c. down, and pro showing a rise of $\frac{1}{2}$ to 17 cents.

Downturns in grain prices earlier from weakness of sterling exchange from Liverpool report of lack of for wheat.

Exports of wheat supplies at peralbanse. Opponents of the wheat substitute called the move started at a shade to decline a studied indifference.

Active speculative buying sprang up during early setbacks but prices turned the market upward. The action of the New York Stock Exchange at this stage in the subsequent delays to harvest, was edged.

The amount of wheat on ocean from the export countries was 33,752,000 bush against 35,720,000 bush and 43,256,000 at this time in 1916. The price of wheat, per bush, was 1.15, and provisions were reported to be upturns in hog values.

JURY CHOSEN TO TRY MAIL-ORDER HUSBAND

Move for Change of Venue in Harry Powers Murder Trial Denied.

By the Associated Press.
CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 7.—Twelve men, nearly all middle-aged and the majority of them farmers or small town merchants, were chosen in rapid-fire order today to decide the fate of Harry F. Powers on trial for one of the five "matrimonial agency" murders for which he has been indicted.

Judge Southern, following the completion of the jury, overruled a defense motion for a change of venue.

Attorney J. Ed Law had argued there was evidence of high feeling against the defendant in the answers the prospective jurors had made during their examination.

The stage of Moore's Opera House saw the commencement today of the trial. The erection of a new courthouse necessitated the unique venue.

Assignment of a company of State troopers and 18 policemen to the courtroom was made to prevent any demonstration or disorder. Eight State policemen were detailed to take Powers to his place beside his counsel, J. Ed Law.

The portly, middle-aged specialty salesman, who is accused of killing Mrs. Dorothy Lemke in a hidden room under his specially constructed garage, was meticulous about his appearance.

His "court room outfit" was a newly pressed serge suit, black oxford, white shirt, and a black and white tie. He wore a pair of tortoise shell glasses.

The task of selecting a jury was not expected to take more than a few hours. Seventy-five farmers, miners, small town business men are on the panel. Women are not eligible in West Virginia. There are few in this mining center who have not read or heard about the man accused of killing the woman he wooed by mail. As a result a knowledge of the case will not bar a man from the jury.

The 1200 seats in the improvised court room were filled and hundreds of men and women crowded the side walk and street in front of the theater when Powers stepped from an automobile and disappeared into the building. At 9 a. m. he was led on to the stage, where he sat down in a chair beside the Judge's bench and looked slowly, deliberately over faces that peered up at him. Judge Southern then opened court.

Six miles out in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, at Quiet Dell, a highway was blocked yesterday with cars of those who wanted to see the frame and red tile garage, void of windows, where Powers is alleged to have lured Mrs. Lemke, Mrs. Anna Eulick Eicher of Park Ridge, Ill., and the latter's three children.

Little was left of the subterranean death chambers, where months ago investigators found trap doors, lethal gas connections and blood stains which led them to the conviction that there five were killed and dropped through a trap door to the dank sepulchre below.

Southern hunters had taken away the doors, part of the windows and even the sod that covered the ditch in which the five bodies were found.

MAN IS KILLED BY TRAIN
The body of an unidentified man, killed by a train during the night, was found on an Illinois Central Railroad trestle a mile and a half south of East St. Louis today by members of a train crew.

The man was about 45 years old, five feet six inches tall and had brown hair. He was wearing two suits of clothes, one gray and one tan. One of the suits bore the mark of a Jacksonville (Ill.) clothing firm and a collar in a pocket had the initials "F. C." on it. The body was taken to the Kurrus Undertaking Co., 2525 State street.

City Wed A new Serial Story

By Faith Baldwin

CHAPTER TWELVE

"W HAT on earth," said Nevis—"I thought they were so happy, although he's a lot older. That explains what Della and Frances meant the night they were at the apartment—our housewarming, remember? Speaking of housewarmings—what will become of the new Waterford house?"

"Sam says Fluff wants it; and Waterford will probably include it in his settlement on her. He hasn't a leg to stand on. Apartment on Riverside Drive, of all places! and a Rolls and a Cadillac and God knows what. It appears that everyone in town knew about it but Fluff."

"Sam said that she said—not that I care so much about his having been unfaithful—he's been unfaithful before and it seems as if it was just one of those things you have to expect of a man. But he could at least have been decently discreet about it. I won't be made a laughing stock. The never forgive him. I never want to see him again." . . . Well, she had to see him of course and Sam said they sat and glared at each other and that the names they called each other were something to write home about. Sam was awfully upset. He wouldn't have told even me if he hadn't been a little off his nut. He's crazy about Fluff, you know, thinks she's the last word. And he's always liked Les. Bill paused and laughed from sheer astonishment. "Les . . . who the Hades would have thought it of him?"

There was a spic of mockery in his tone, astonishment and a very broad hint of admiration. Nevis, her ears sharpened, heard it. She thought . . . he despises Les for being such a fool . . . he knows that whatever he had from that girl he had to buy, but he hands it to him just the same. . . . getting away with it as long as he did; for having the nerve.

Bill added, sitting aside a chair, his chin on the back. "And what's more, the Carlysles are separating. It seems it has been coming for a long time." "Why?" asked Nevis, and felt a distinct shock of sorrow. She liked Frances and Dirk Carlyle. They were nice people, good sports. And she'd always told Della that they must care a lot about each other to have grown so much alike in 10 years of marriage.

"I DON'T know," said Bill, "but it's a damned shame, isn't it? Gee, we'll miss them. I mean, I suppose Frances will go on living down here and Dirk will stay in town and we'll see them both, but it won't be the same. Sam said that he'd heard that Frances was keen on that man we met at Carter's—remember—the newspaper fellow? He's a lot younger than she is and one of the best two-fisted, serious drinkers I ever saw in my life, but that can't be a recommendation for romance."

He added: "Well, we can't take sides." "No," said Nevis. She powdered her nose. She added, of course she can't. But it's hard all the same. Theoretically you can be friends with both; practically you can't."

"Gosh," said Bill again, "I'm sorry about it all." He dropped a kiss on the top of her head. He said, "It's long time before it gets dark. I hoped to get home earlier. Still I think I can make dinner and nine holes too, if you hold things back. So long, infant."

He clattered down the stairs. Nevis rose from her dressing table and pulling her wisp of a silken negligee about her, sat down in the low chair by the window and stared out on treetops and lawn. She thought—what mess.

She remembered the "newspaper fellow." It couldn't be serious. Frances must be out of her mind. But she recalled now that Frances had been unlike herself during the last few months, terribly restless, smoking too much, drinking too much. She thought, I must talk to Della.

Della, due in town next week to wait at the hospital for her baby. Della and Mort seemed the sanest things left in life. Nevis flung on a straight one-piece linen dress, called over the stairs to Hari that dinner must be delayed, flew out to the garage and got out the old car and drove to Della's. She knew she would find her in, the trained nurse had already been installed and she and Della were in a perfect welter of baby trousseaus all day long.

Della greeted her gaily. "Come in. Mort's had to stay in town. I'm going to have dinner on a tray with Miss Morrison. Join us, will you?"

"No. Bill's home. He's playing golf now and we're having a late dinner. Della, have you heard about Fluff and Les?"

Della and she were alone in the living room. Della said, after a moment, "I've known it for some time. So it's broken, then? Front-pare stuff tomorrow, I suppose. Les is a fool. Fluff—well, I don't know about Fluff. It has happened before, you know, and she put a good face on it and kept a stiff upper lip and went along as if nothing had happened. She married him, you see, when she was just short of 18. She was warned, but she married him all the same and her pride wouldn't permit her to say she'd had enough."

Nevis admitted, helplessly: "I don't understand people. Bill

SYNOPSIS
Nevis and Bill Lancaster were supremely happy until Bill became successful selling bonds and they started living beyond their means. Bill entertains lavishly to promote business and is constantly on the go. Nevis sees little of him and she longs for the simple life they led when first married. Then Bill meets Olive Blanchard, who tries in vain to alienate his affections. Although Bill sees much of Olive and enjoys her company, he loves Nevis. Nevis, however, believes the affair is serious when she reads a poem which Olive sent to Bill. Piqued, she accepts the attentions of Harry Carter, a prominent architect. Bill is jealous, but when Nevis offers to give up Carter if he does Olive, he refuses. Carter tells Nevis he loves her and cannot go on without her. Nevis is stunned when Bill tells her friends, Fluff and Les Waterford, are separating.

told me. He told me that Sam said Frances and Dirk were separating." "I know. I've known that, too, for ages. It isn't official, she'll go to Europe this fall and Dirk will live at his club in town. They'll do it gradually and without a lot of talk. Her fault. I told her so. Dirk's all right, if a little slow on the uptake. She—she just doesn't know what she wants."

Nevis said and felt herself flushing. "Sam said—another man?" "Stew Williamson? Oh, I don't think that means anything. I mean by that, Frances had always had a man or two twirling around. It flatters her. She has to have a lot of attention. Dirk was always pretty busy. I suppose she got so used to it after a while that the sight of Dirk on a rare evening at home alone got on her nerves. I've argued with her, all summer. No use."

She advised, smiling into Nevis' troubled, dark eyes: "Don't take it so hard. You are taking it hard, you know? Marriage is an obstacle race. You and Bill are all right."

WHERE they? Nevis wondered. She went home to wait for Bill. He was late, of course. Hari came out of the kitchen with a long face and the announcement that dinner was ruined. She said, absently: "It doesn't matter, really," and Hari went back to the kitchen to engage his running-mate in conversation and speculations. Nevis went out on the lawn, sat down in a wicker chair beneath the great oak tree that was the pride of the little place. She looked across the close cropped green grass to the winding tree-shadowed reaches of Old Lynn Lane. She thought . . . it's lovely here . . . and peaceful.

But it wasn't. Fluff and Waterford; and Frances and Dirk; and now she had to face it—herself and Bill.

She hadn't been even decent to Bill lately. That was Olive. Olive and her possessive manner. Bill was an idiot the way he permitted himself to be taken in by that avid girl with her slow eyes and her caressing fingertips.

If Bill hadn't permitted himself to be drawn into an affair with Olive, thought Nevis, convinced, she herself wouldn't have gone as far as she had with Harry Carter. She didn't love Harry. She liked him; and he had become necessary to her, save to her wounds, ointment to her hurt vanity.

But, she thought suddenly, that's like Frances. In a way . . . amusing herself with other men because Dirk has ceased to amuse her, until she can't get along without them.

She thought, frightened, you drift into these things and the first thing you know, you're sunk. (Continued Tomorrow.)

Mammoth Pajamas

For Resort Wear

There is evidence that the mammoth type of pajama will be seen at the fashionable resorts this winter. Most of these are made in navy or brown woolsens and jersey and are worn with tailored shirts with mannish necklines and pockets. There are also corduroy, and corduroy weaves in cotton and wool. Red, green and orange stripes in linen are being featured also for beach pajamas. Many trousers are being cut midway between the ankle and the knee. Most of them have the trousers pressed down the center and are finished with a turned-up cuff at the bottom.

The Strange LOVE STORY of 'SKIGIRL'

The Middle-Aged Wife Who Cared for Her Husband's Youthful Sweetheart and Their Baby Tells How Triangle Situation Ruined Lives of All Three—Began Through an Accidental Meeting.

outdoor sports. She had posed for an advertisement widely used by the Canadian Pacific Railroad, in which she was called "My Lady of the Skis."

She was a young, beautiful brunette of 20 when she and Connor first met, according to Mrs. Connor. It was AUG. 1, 1925, a date which the wife remembers because she and her husband had attended a dinner at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Montreal for the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George. Connor, now a convict, was then a prominent consulting engineer.

As they left the hotel, Connor saw Miss Gledhill, bitterly weeping. The cause of her grief has never been revealed, but it had far-reaching effects. Mr. and Mrs. Connor accented the girl, attempted to console her, and took her home with them. Connor, Mrs. Connor says, "must have fallen in love with her right then."

"Anyway, from that time on all he did was to take her out, and take her home. We had been happy until then; our own son was 22 years old, my husband had a large income from his profession and was accepted socially in Montreal, and before I stopped working—I am a consulting engineer, also—we traveled about together. But he began to neglect his business on account of May, and we came back to the United States."

Miss Gledhill also came to the United States, and Connor's attentions continued. They were not unwelcome, despite the difference in age.

"I tried to reason with her," continued Mrs. Connor. "I told her she would ruin her own life and mine, and that nothing good would come of it. But I could do nothing. I knew that if I gave them enough rope they would hang themselves."

Connor finally established Miss Gledhill in a Greenwich Village apartment in New York, secretly at first. And then he took his wife to the apartment, and introduced her to Miss Gledhill and to his and Miss Gledhill's son, Connor. She had maintained establishments for Miss Gledhill in Boston, Stamford, Conn., and in Rye and Rochester, N. Y. The lady was born in Rochester in January, 1930.

Whether Connor knew his wife or whether he was merely possessed of a childish simplicity, the introduction to Miss Gledhill caused no storm. Earlier she had threatened to divorce Connor, and had instituted suit, but acceded to Connor's request that she drop the proceedings. Now, she simply accepted the situation, became friends with May and the baby, and moved into the apartment with them while Connor traveled about on business. She became as fond of the baby, apparently, as its mother, referred to him frequently as "my baby," and named it "Peel" after the mother's maternal family, Miss Gledhill having merely called the boy "Sonny."

She still clung to her husband's love, Mrs. Connor said, and hoped to have him for herself. "As wives always think. I thought he'd get over this affair. And by this time a string of bad checks bobbed up."

She had left the apartment and was living with her son, William Connor, Jr., in Greenwich, Conn., when she received word that Connor had been arrested at Floral Park, N. Y., on a forgery charge held against him in Vermont. He and Mrs. Connor had spent last summer in a camp near Lake Champlain, and he paid the rent with a check for $625. The check was worthless.

Mrs. Connor went to the jail where her husband was held, immediately on hearing of his arrest. May Gledhill was there also. "I want you to take care of May and the baby," my husband said to me," Mrs. Connor related. "So I moved to Floral Park, and took them along with me. We rented our home furnished. I loved May as a mother would a daughter."

Mrs. William Connor and "Sonny," her husband's child by another woman.

a forgiving nature. "I don't see why my husband how great my love for May has always been and is more now than ever, and you must realize that I should be made to suffer for May's mistakes," was her only statement, except that she indicated she is in this country to take May and the child back to Montreal as soon as May is well enough.

THAT was undoubtedly a hard blow for Mrs. Connor, who still receives letters from her husband, and reads them to May. The following is one letter, written Nov. 27, last:

"Dearest May: Why do you hate me so? I know I have done you wrong and am paying for it dearly, and you will never know how I suffer. I am praying God you or Sonny will never suffer mentally the way I do."

"One thing I want you to know if you do not already understand it. I was always true and faithful to you and always will be. You have always been brave and true and everything to me to live for. No one can blame you for my mistake. I became unbalanced at the thought of hunger staring our dear little man in the face."

"I am told you took my place at the home table Thanksgiving. I still hope that at my empty chair and place beside Sonny you will place my photo for I will be there in spirit and thought with you always whenever you are home. You never need write me what home is again for I know it is everything I don't find here. Love, trust and happy hours, even though it was the simplest, made life worth while and you know it was never money."

To Mrs. Connor he wrote:

"William has been writing constantly since he has been in prison. He writes to both of us, very affectionate letters, sometimes in the same envelope."

"He informs me he is still in love with me, but he tells May also, that she holds all of his affections. We read each other's letters when they arrive."

"I used to think they were equally responsible for this affair, but after reading some of the letters he has sent to the girl I think he is more than 75 per cent to blame. May blames my husband for all her troubles. He ran after her all the time, she told me, and finally induced her to leave home. Her parents know all about it. She writes to them, and they write to her. Detectives in Montreal, too, have all the facts in the case."

"BUT I don't hold anything against her. It was just human nature after all. She is young and pretty. I am neither. We came to accept the situation as something that could not be otherwise. I hardly see how my husband could be otherwise than to choose between us as he did. She is so beautiful, so accomplished. She sings. She is an accomplished amateur actress. She is related to Sir Robert Peel, and she imitates Sir Robert's wife, Beatrice Lillie, better than I have ever seen done on the professional stage."

Her family in Montreal is a fine one. Her mother, her father, her brothers and sisters lived in West Mount, one of the finest and most exclusive sections of Montreal. "May can, and did, so much for him in the way of companionship that I could not. She's a perfect mother. She lives 24 hours a day for her baby. She's a perfect housekeeper. She told me that my husband told her often that he intended to marry her when he could. I couldn't blame him or her so very much if I were shoved out of their lives. They love one another so."

And while May was in the hospital, Mrs. Connor visited and comforted her, and looked after the baby. When Mrs. Anne Peel Gledhill, May's mother, arrived from Montreal after the expose, for the first reunion in six years, Mrs. Connor washed, bathed, and carefully dressed "Sonny" for the visit of his maternal grandmother. But to Mrs. Connor's amazement "Grandmother" Gledhill made no effort to see the child.

"I'd like to meet Mrs. Gledhill," Mrs. Connor had expressed her hope. "I hope she is a big enough woman to come and see her grandchild. No matter what the circumstances of his birth were, I know she'd fall in love with the little boy, just as I did—even though I knew he personified my husband's love for this other woman. After all, it's not little Sonny's fault. He's just as innocent as he is sweet."

"Mrs. Gledhill ought to make the best of the situation, just as I do. But Mrs. Gledhill is not of such

HEALTH

Brief articles prepared by experts. Edited by Dr. Japs Galdston, for the New York Academy of Medicine.

Rheumatic Fever

RHEUMATIC fever is one of the most scourges of our time. It does not cause immediate death, a 'for that reason, the average person is not impressed with its importance.

It is, however, responsible for the largest proportion of heart disease among the young. It causes untold wealth in crippling lives and in premature deaths. In England and in the United States extensive research is being carried on to discover its cause and a method for its effective control.

At present we are still uncertain as to its origin and the manner of its spread. Nor is there a specific remedy for it.

On the other hand, the damage it causes can in a large measure be limited by early diagnosis and proper care.

Early diagnosis is not entirely due to the physician. Too often the young patient is treated with home remedies by well meaning elders who do not know the serious nature of the disease.

Rheumatic fever may begin in one of several ways. There is an acute, development, fortunate for the patient, because it leads to prompt medical treatment.

In this form of development several of the joints become inflamed and painful. The large joints are most commonly involved.

However, the disease may at times affect only one joint, and that one of the smaller articulations, say, of the fingers or toes.

Any form of joint pain in a child needs prompt and expert medical care.

For, though attention is drawn to the painful articulation, it may be looked upon as merely a local manifestation of a disease which involves the entire body.

Practically always the heart is also involved by the rheumatic condition.

It is a little tactless of a young husband, of course. But should take comfort in the fact that he is so open and he about it. Probably if he still of her. Don't be unworthy and wish enough to allow that to your happiness; and do keep jealousy to yourself. Some jealousy is only another word for love, and not the noble passion of love that some see think it.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am years old, pretty and have a good job. Until recently I had a lot of attention from the opposite sex in general. Two months ago I gave up all my other friends, a young man 20 years old, who met and liked very much. He is a good position and consequent would have to keep on working. Now Mrs. Carr, I am not silly, I have been a secretary for a long time, and consequently have ideas. Even at this early age have worked hard and obtain position as secretary to a prominent business man. So far I have been a success. In the greatest of life—marriage! Do you think that a marriage of this sort will be successful? He is a very able chap, and the family like although they think I am young to marry. Other men treat me. Do you think that can be in love and still be attracted by other men? He wants married immediately and keeps secret for awhile. I have to do as I am afraid I would lose my job, and he does not make an effort to support the both of us. I shall I do?

You show that you have a head on young shoulders by a sensible enough to stop and before doing something you think about it. Your head has nothing to do with the of your affection, other than to be able to prove it. It looks as if must have judgment for both until you are older; no marriage.

DEAR MRS. CARR: Five days ago I met a girl who, at time, was 17 years old, went steady with her for years. We were engaged. We a split-up and in hopes of finding her I came 1000 miles to Louisiana. That was two and one years ago. A year ago I received a Christmas card from her, informing me she was married as I may I have not been able to forget this girl. I still love as much as ever. I have hobbies, but they do not fill help.

Could you suggest something help me forget her permanent things will have to change way or the other before long. Can't stand it much longer. SHIMPAKU MAT

Perhaps your imagination built up an aura about this whom you have not seen for years, that might be dimmed disappear entirely if you see her again. Sometimes might take a perfectly cold trip and have a look at her. You are engaged. You have come enough to want to help self. If not, do not go near take yourself over the coals, well know that your dream is disturbing and false. Hard constant reading of travel and experiences, not too cheap fiction, and a detest interest in other girls (in the for the time being) will help you.

DEAR MRS. CARR: I am years old, have a job, a happy home life and no friends. I think a change would help me, but I have no backbone to start out alone without definite plans. Do you know any place I could go to work, institute or some place like even just for my room and LONELY AND DESPERATE

Bottling-in-the-country means a lot to MILK

THE time between milking and bottling is of utmost importance to milk. Raw milk is sensitive to impurities in the air. Thus, to keep it pure and sweet not a moment must be lost in bottling. That is why St. Louis Dairy bottles its milk in the country—and why this milk is always uniformly fresh and wholesome.

The health-value of this creamy milk is carefully protected. Fresh from nearby farms, the raw milk is immediately tested and pasteurized. Then, while it is still fresh and sweet, it is promptly chilled and bottled in a country plant where the air is always pure and clean.

Because St. Louis Dairy milk is produced nearby, because it is dated the day it is pasteurized, you can always depend on its safety and freshness. At only 11 cents a quart the advantages of this bottled-in-the-country milk make a great health bargain. Call CENTRAL 3900. St. Louis Dairy milkmen are trained to give service as certain as sunrise.

KIDNAPER TELLS

STATEMENT READ AT HEARING ON REQUEST FOR BOND

Prisoner's Story Implicates Five Others Held in Abduction of Furrier for Ransom—He Was One Who Rented Flat.

CRIME CONCEIVED BY PEAK, HE SAYS

Declares "Whole Affair Was Messed Up" During Ransom Negotiations—Assigns Charles Tucker Minor Role.

The story of the kidnaping of Alexander Berg, as related by one of his captors, was told in court today by Judge Ryan. The narrator, Curtis Medlock, sought his release on bond pending trial in the case on a charge of kidnaping for ransom, a capital offense.

Medlock, already designated the man who rented the flat, 5834 A. Easton avenue where Berg was held captive for more than four days last month, made a lengthy confession to the police. It was in his statement, read by the court by Chief of Detectives Kaiser, that hitherto unpublished details of the abduction were made public.

Implicates Four Others. Medlock told the police, his statement revealed, that the principal in the case were Charles H. Edward Barcum and George F. Peck, both ex-convicts now in jail on indictment. He also named as principal himself, "and that is my meaning apparently," Paul Richards, attorney and self-charged agent of the kidnapers who motion for release on bond was filed yesterday by Judge Ryan.

Medlock said that Charles Tucker, former juvenile delinquent who was employed by the kidnapers as a guard, helped escort Berg to the place where he was released and for this and other services was to have received a sum of $100 or $250.

Peak, he said, conceived the kidnaping. Peak had been employed within a few doors of Berg's establishment at 200 North M street.

Movements of Kidnapers. Outlining the movements of the kidnapers, Medlock told of renting the flat, and of following Berg from his office in an automobile with Barcum and Heuer the night of the kidnaping.

Heuer committed the actual kidnaping in crowded traffic on E. 10th boulevard just west of E. 11th avenue, less than two blocks from Berg's apartment in the Park Fl. Hotel.

Then he related how Berg was taken into the county transfer to Easton avenue flat. Less than an hour later Medlock himself telephoned Mrs. Berg with the message from the kidnapers, mailed her a special delivery, setting the amount of the ransom at $50,000.

His story included, too, some details of Berg's life in the kidnapers' flat and of the efforts to arrange contacts for the payment of ransom, which finally was made in the kidnapers' demand $50,000. This, as is known, never paid, because the kidnapers were either under arrest or were fugitives within 12 hours of Berg's release on promise of payment of the ransom by his attorney, Morris G. Levinson.

Chief Kaiser Questioned. Chief Kaiser was first questioned about a preliminary statement made by Medlock, which contained in brief form the story of the kidnaping. This was related by Medlock later in more detail to Detective-Lieutenant Tom Wren and his brother, Detective-Sergeant Wren, and was incorporated in longer statement, also read at hearing.
